P R E F A C E.

THE Gazetteer which I lay before the reader as the result of five years' diligent labour, is constructed upon the plan of bringing together as many articles as possible, under distinct heads, for purposes of reference. It comprehends both the topography and the hydrography of the United Kingdom, and contains, in one general alphabet, the names of Sixty Thousand places, seats, natural features, and objects of note in England, Wales, Scotland, Ireland, and the adjacent Seas. The average space allotted to each name is necessarily small, yet I believe that nothing essential has been omitted. On the contrary, from the use of a plain style, a simple method of abbreviation, and other arrangements, this Gazetteer will be found to comprise, in a clear and legible type, more substantial information, collected from original sources, and put into a convenient form, than the bulkiest of its class.

It includes the names of all the cities, towns, villages, hamlets, etc. which appear in the Censuses of 1821, '31, and '41; all the names in CARLISLE, POTT, GORTON, LEWIS, FULLARTON, CHAMBERS, HALL, and other general writers; all those in the Guide-books to Derbyshire, the Lakes, North and South Wales, Isle of Wight, Channel Islands, Isle of Man, the Highlands, Lakes of Killarney, &c.; and all the Seats noticed in MOGG, BLACK, FRAZER, CLIFFE; exclusive of many additional names gathered out of the Maps and Charts which have been consulted.

The natural objects, as rivers, lakes, mountains, hills, passes, waterfalls, points of view, &c., with the bays, ports, headlands, lights, islands, shoals, &c. round the coast, are given under their proper names; besides every locality or object of historical or antiquarian character, as Roman stations and camps, Roman and British ways, Saxon towns, Druid stones, cromlechs, round towers, Danish raths, "Picts' houses," castles, abbeys, &c. Mines and seats of manufactures, canals, railways and railway stations, election and polling places, coast-guard and police stations, are also noticed; and hunting "fixtures" inserted from the most approved lists.

The Counties are fully described; while the civil, political, and ecclesiastical divisions,—as hundreds, baronies, wapentakes, poor law unions, registry and new county court districts,—dioceses, archdeaconries, and deaneries,—synods and presbyteries,—are all carefully defined by a statement at length of the places contained in each, drawn from Parliamentary and other returns, so that their boundaries may be accurately traced. The late Census (in England and Wales) having been taken according to the Registries and Unions, this will prove, at least so far, to be a feature of more than common value.

The length of the descriptions of places is, in general, measured by their relative importance,—due regard being had to the name, ordnance number, position, history, Parliamentary representation, municipal government, size or acreage, population and industry, public buildings, poor-rate (and union), real property, endowed charities, livings (with the diocese, value, and patron), churches, brasses and monuments, antiquities, eminent natives, &c.; with market-days, fairs, races.

All the positions have been retaken from the maps, and as not only the county, but the quarter of the county, in which a name must be looked for, is given, the Gazetteer affords an easy and direct answer to the first question concerning a place, “Where is it?”

To the population of 1841 is joined its annual increase (as compared with the previous Census), to enable the enquirer to bring it down with tolerable correctness to any year independently of the new Census, the results of which, however, are added in the Appendix.

With a view to facilitate consultation, a mark is prefixed to the Parliamentary boroughs, post and market towns, the larger ecclesiastical divisions, and the remains of antiquity. The advantage of this will be perceived upon turning over a few pages of the work.

Every name has a number referring to its own sheet of the Ordnance Survey of Great Britain and Ireland, as far as published, so that THIS GAZETTEER WILL BE ALMOST A COMPLETE INDEX TO THAT GREAT UNDERTAKING. Such a companion, enabling the reader to judge, in some degree, of the contents of the Survey, or to procure the exact sheet in which a place is situated, has been long in request; and thus, in connexion with the improvements above mentioned, this work may claim the possession of a certain official value beyond others of the kind, while it will serve not only as a record of names, but as a guide to every locality of interest in the United Kingdom.

It is difficult to keep pace with the rapid production of statistics, when every session gives birth to 60, 70, 80 giant Blue Books, so that even the most recent compilations are soon out of date; but in the Gazetteer I have endeavoured to bring together such items as may suffice either for standards to go back to, or for comparison between place and place. With regard to these and other matters, a great deal that could not and need not be stated at length, is left to be inferred by the intelligent reader, who, with a multitude of facts before him, presenting unlimited scope for remarks on the condition and progress of any spot, may be safely allowed to form his own conclusions.

I cannot omit to thank those correspondents who have been good enough to favour me with useful information, which I have acknowledged in the proper place; but my gratitude is especially due to one contributor, whose active and persevering assistance I have had the good fortune to enjoy throughout. I take the liberty to add, that this Gazetteer is not offered as an experiment merely, but rather as the first fruits of a well-considered attempt to provide a work of reference of permanent usefulness, — superior, as I believe, to its predecessors, yet only to be perfected by frequent revisions, aided by the kindness of those who consult it, and who may be willing to communicate through the Publishers whatever they notice to be defective or erroneous.

J. A. S.

Note.—The Appendix to the 2nd volume contains a brief sketch of the three kingdoms, being, for the most part, a summary of the counties, with particulars derived from the latest Returns, and tabular views; also a Chronology of the chief events and persons mentioned in the Gazetteer, and an abstract of the results of the Census for 1851.

* * ENGLAND, IRELAND, SCOTLAND, WALES, which are referred from the body of the work to the Preface, have been placed in the Appendix to the Second vol.

ABBREVIATIONS, ETC.

The counties are always in italic letters; this distinguishes Bedford from Bedfordshire, Buckingham from Buckinghamshire, Ayr from Ayrshire, Carlow from Carlow county, etc. Such abbreviations as Beds. for Bedfordshire, Bucks. for Buckinghamshire, Herts. for Hertfordshire, Salop for Shropshire, etc. are already common; as are par. for parish, vil. for village, etc. In general, the abbreviations of counties, dioceses, (following the livings), poor law unions (following the poor rate), railways, etc. are made clear by the context. When a name is repeated in the same article, it is abbreviated; thus, A. Lodge, in an account of Abberley, means Abberley Lodge. A ~~£~~ is used where names which are alike, or nearly alike, are brought together under one head.

tnshp.	—	township.
vil.	—	village.
hamlt.	—	hamlet.
chply.	—	chapelry.
tythg.	—	tything.
ext. par.	—	extra parochial.
g. s. par. (in Scotland)	means a quoad sacra parish,
i. e. one made for church purposes.	—	liberty.
lib.	—	division.
div.	—	hundred.
hund.	—	wapentake.
wap.	—	barony.
bar. (in Ireland)	—	population (for 1841).
pop.	—	with the average annual increase joined to it with the sign +, so that the reader can bring it down to any year, near enough for common purposes.
poor r.	—
U.	—	poor rate (for 1846-7).
	—	Union (always following the poor rate in a bracket).
expend.	—	expenditure.
P. L. Incorp.	—	Poor Law Incorporation (under a local act).
Sup. Registry	—	Superintendent Registry.
"for poor"	—	poor levy (for 1847-8), in Scotland.
real prop.	—	real property (for 1842-3).

M.	—	market town.
one * or two 	—	a borough returning one or two members to parliament.
Æ.	—	some remains of antiquity.
✕	—	an ecclesiastical division, as a diocese, synod, etc.

The number of the Ordnance sheet a place is in, follows the name in a parenthesis: thus (18). Several of these are left open, for sheets not yet published, or when places could not be found on the maps.

Places are measured from the nearest market town, — the distance of the latter by road from the metropolis (London, Edinbro', Dublin) being joined to it; thus, "Wincanton-109," means that Wincanton is 109 miles from London; "Burren-132," that Burren is 132 from Dublin; "Arbroath-62," that Arbroath is 62 from Edinbro'.

English Dioceses
St. As.	means	St. Asaph.
Ban.	—	Bangor.
Ba. and W.	—	Bath and Wells.

Oxon.	—	Oxford.	Tu. K. A.	— Tuam, Killala, and Achonry.
Pet.	—	Peterboro'.
Rip.	—	Ripon.
Roch.	—	Rochester.
Sal. or Sarum	—	Salisbury.
Sod. and M.	—	Sodor and Man.
Win.	—	Winchester.
Worc.	—	Worcester.
Yk.	—	York.

As an example of the most common abbreviations, take ABBAS and TEMPLE COMBE, page 1, which read at length, is:—

"Abbas and Temple Combe parish, in the 18th sheet of the Ordnance Survey, "in Horethorne hundred, on the NE. side of Somersetshire, 4 miles S. of Wincanton, "which is 109 miles by road from London, near —. It contains 2020 acres, and had "a population of 461 in 1841, increasing 2 a year (so that in 1851 it may be about "481); the poor rate (in 1846-7) was 309*l.*, and it is in Wincanton Union; the real "property (in 1843) was 4268*l.*; the endowed charities are worth 10*l.* a year. St. "Mary's Rectory is in the diocese of Bath and Wells, the value 398*l.*, and the patronage "with the Rev. T. Fox." Note.—St. Mary here, the name of the mother church, is also the legal name of the parish.

Measures.—The acres throughout (unless others are spoken of) are statute acres, of which 640 = 1 square mile (sq. m.); 1000 = $1\frac{1}{2}$ sq. m. nearly (less by $\frac{1}{25}$). For all cornish parishes, Dr. Boase's more correct acreage, given in Gilbert's Parochial History of Cornwall, is placed side by side with the Population Return area, as a specimen of the uncertainty which still exists on this head in England.—In Scotland, 1*s.* scots = 1*d.* sterling; 1*l.* = 1*s.* 8*d.*; 100*l.* = 8*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* 10 scots miles = $11\frac{1}{4}$ statute; 23 scots acres = 29 statute, or 100 = 126, i. e. nearly $\frac{1}{4}$ more; in other words, 1*l.* the scotch acre is 15*s.* 10½*d.* the imperial. 2 wheat bolls = 1 imperial quarter; 11 barley bolls = 8 qrs. A davoch in the Highlands is an uncertain ploughland of 8 oxen (see KIRKMICHAEL, Banff).—In Ireland, 1*s.* irish = 11*d.* sterling; 1*l.* = 18*s.* 5½*d.*; 100*l.* = 92*l.* 6*s.* 1¾*d.* 30¼ irish acres = 49 statute, or 100 = 162 nearly, i. e. about $\frac{2}{3}$ more; in other words, 1*l.* the irish acre is 12*s.* 4*d.* the imperial.—In the Channel Islands, 21½ sq. ft. = 1 perch; 40 perches = 1 vergee; 2½ vergees = 1 english acre nearly; 4 vergees = 1 Guernsey acre = 1 irish acre nearly.

N. B. The Excise Collections are in course of alteration; therefore, at the beginning of each, for "contains" read "contained," as the description refers to the past. For a note relative to the height of Ben Nevis, see p. 988. in the Appendix.

ABERDAUGLEDDAU is MILFORD HAVEN, S. Pembrok. at the mouth of the E. and W. Cleddau.

ABERDEENSHIRE, a seaside county in NE. Scotland, the old seat of the Taizali in the roman Vespasiana, is watered by Rs. Dee, Don, Ythan, etc. and bordered by Kincardine and Forfar. (S.), the Grampians, Perth, and Inverness. (SW.), Banff. (W.), the N. Sea (N. and E.). Length from Scarsoch, in the centre of Scotland, to Rattray Hd. 87 m.; greatest breadth 36., av. ditto 21.; relative size, 651-10,000ths; circuit, about 200 m. of which 60 is sandy and rocky coast, having along it, Aberdeen near Girdleness light, Belhelvie sand (where Gen. Colby measured his base line of 5 m.), Newburgh at the Ythan's mouth, Cruden Scars, Slains cast, Bass Rock, Buller's cave (up which the sea rushes in rough weather), Boddam cast, Buchanness light (the most E. point of Scotld.), Peterhead, St. Fergus par. (which belongs to Banff.) near Scotstown Pt. and the Ugie's mouth, Strathbeg loch (or lagoon), Fraserburgh near Kinnaird's Hd. light, Dundargue cast., and Aberdeen. It contains 1970 sq. m. or 1,260,800 acres, of which 2-3rds are uncultivated mountain, moss, etc.; 192,387 + 1463 persons, of whom 77,898 are in Aberdeen, Huntly, Inverury, Peterhead, and Turriff, 102,680 are females, 88,468 under 20 yrs. of age, 166,352 county-born,—27,987 or 14.5 per cent. live by commerce, trade, etc., 25,244 or 13.1 per cent. by agricult. (8677 being farmers and graziers), 1906 by educated professions, 6837 are independent, 34,244 labourers and servants, etc.; 32,063 houses, besides 1149 empty and building; 8 divisions, Aberdeen in SE. (the old Cromar), Kincardine O'Neil, SW. (Midmar and Braemar), Alford, W. (Mar and Strathbogie), Garioch in the middle, Ellon, E. (Formartin), Deer, N. (Buchan) Turriff, NW. (Formartin and Buchan), Strathbogie, W.; 83 parishes, with parts of 6 others (Braemar being the largest, or 600 sq. m.); 1 city, Aberdeen the capital, etc., as below—4 royal and parl. burghs, Aberdeen*, Inverury*, Kintore, Peterhead — and 6 burghs of barony, Charles-town, Frazerburgh*, Huntly*, Old Meldrum, Rosehearty, Turriff* — those marked* being small debts courts, along with Tarland and Old Deer; returns 3 members to parl. viz. 1 for the county (elect. 3540), 1 for the city (as below), 1 for Inverury, Kintore, Peterhead, etc., along with Elgin; is governed by a lord lieut. and about 70 dep. lieuts. (with a sheriff and substitute) in 10 districts, which include the divisions above (except Kinc. O'Neil, and Strathbogie) with Braemar, Deeside, Huntly, Newmachar districts; and constitutes a synod and 8 presbyteries (as below), with 88 clergy, whose av. stipends are 201l. Real prop. (1815) 325,218l., ('43) 605,802l.; rentals, (1811) 233,827l., or 3s. 9d. per acre, ('43) 423,889l., or 6s. 9d. per acre; valued rent, (1674) 235,665l. scots. Savings' banks (1849) 4, with 103,375l. from 8781 depositors; expend. for poor ('47-8) in 82 pars. (36 being assessed) 80,710l. of which 26,701l. for 6521 poor on roll, 957l. for 3055 casual poor. Av. number of offenders ('36-46) 167; schools, 450, attended by 22,500 children; along with Banff. and Elgin. it participates in Dick's bequest for par. schools. — Granite and gneiss are 8-9ths of the substratum, the rest being grauwacke and old red sandstone (to the N. where it makes the wide level moors and moss of Buchan); and the surface gradually rises from the coast towards the Grampians on the W. border, where, especially at the Dee's head, the wild magnificence of Highland scenery is most conspicuous. Here Ben Muickdhu, the highest peak of Scotland, rises 4390 ft. (or 20 above Ben Nevis), Cairntoul 4355, Ben Abourd

4039, B. Avon 3967, Scarsoch 3390, Morven 2984, Stronlach and Lochnagar, each 2700, the Buck 2376. The only limit to the produce of granite, which is sparkling and small grained, is the expense and difficulty of transport; the Bell Rock light, W. India Docks, London Br. and Custom House, etc., were built out of Tyrebeggar quarry; some, like the Egyptian kind, is made into chimney pieces, vases, etc., — a blue sort is found at Newmills, and a red was worked at Cruden. Sandstone and millstone are quarried at Aberdeen; slate at Culsalmond, and Lambhills, black lead has been found at Huntly, and manganese at Old Aberdeen; limestone, basalt, trap, clay-slate, appear in various parts. The lakes, few and small, are Lochs Dhu, Muick, Callader, Bhrodican, Carnor, Drum, etc., mostly near the Don; mineral spas at Peterhead, Ballater, etc.; the rivers are the Dee (anc. Deva), Don, Ythan (Ituna), Ugie, Doveran — all settling to the E. and abounding with salmon; along the coast the fishermen, who are a distinct race descended from the piratical northmen, catch turbot, sole, ling, skate, haddock, whiting, halibut, cod, etc., — the principal stations being Fraserburgh and Peterhead (which has a whale fishery), where 395 boats and 5497 hands were employed, 1843. Grouse, black game, the hedge-hog, otter, badger, stot, polecat, wild cat, are native, and the forests stocked with roe deer; the Dens of Auchmeddar are rich in medical simples, — alopecurus alpinus, sonchus alp., cochlearia granlandica (or scurvy grass) are native to Lochnagar, carex phacostachya to B. Muickdhu, saxifraga letcivirens to several hills. Climate cold, but mild in winter; soil dry and sandy in the higher parts, which are covered with forests of fir, larch, birch, alder, poplar, etc. — further down by the rivers, in Strathbogie, Strathdon, in Garioch, etc. between the Don and Ythan, and in Buchan, it is arable and cultivated; oats (about 180,000 acres), bere or barley, a little wheat, turnips potatoes (for England) are grown; lean kine, Buchan short-horned cattle, black-faced and a merino-cross sheep, are raised for the mkt.; butter is exported; farm-buildings, good and well enclosed — small farms let from 3s. to 4s. per acre — leases run 19 yrs.; the farmers are skilful and enterprising — draining and a rotation of crops are practised — the heritors are mostly resident, with a taste for planting, and the Highland Soc. has given a stimulus to agriculture in general. Manufactures, mostly seated at Aberdeen, are of flax and linen (about 4000 hands), cotton (1648) knitted stockings (1830 — at Brise, etc.), woollens, and worsted (840, — 'tweeds' at Fintry), rope, twine, lint, etc. (447), combs (220), carpets (186), paper (170, at Newhills). In 1847 (a bad year) 2113, 1319, 375 were employed in the cotton, woollen, and flax mills respectively. — Remains of a roman road are seen in Braemar (anc. Tamea), which came from Perth, and struck off to Burchead — another went by Norman Dykes (Devana) to Ituna (on the Ythan), Mons Grampius, Deskford (Ad Seliman), Gordon Cast. (Tuensis) to the same point. At the 'herschip of Buchan,' near Barra Hill, Bruce defeated Comyn; Mar routed Donald of the Isles 1411, at the bloody battle of Harlaw, where many ancient houses lost all the males; Montrose met the covenanters near Aberdeen 1644; and the Chevalier landed at Peterhead 1715, when Mar raised his standard in Braemar. Many cairns are found about Torres and Fyvie — a Picts' house at Aboyne, an 'Eirde house' in Strathdon, vitrified forts at Insch and Rhynie, and the maiden stone in Garioch; a mound in Peel bog at Lumphanan, marks where

Macbeth fell, though common opinion following Shakespeare, who follows Holinshed, says he was killed at Dunsinane; old castles, are Abergeldie, Boddam, Corgarff, Coul, Dundargue, Dunideer, Fedderat, Lesmore, Slains, etc. A rom. cath. college at Blairs. Seats are, Earl of Aberdeen Haddo Ho., Marq. Simpson; Mitchell's and Shaw's hospitals; Trades' hosp., boys' hosp., lady Drum's charity; Mrs. Emslie's female orphan asylum, houses of Refuge and Industry, deaf and dumb institution, public lunatic (1800) and Middlefield lun. asylums; Royal infirmary

(1742) for 900, dispensary, and smallpox hospital; poor-house; Sheriff Watson's school, industrial and other schools. Real prop. (Old Machar par.) 70,629*l.*; for poor 6112*l.* *Living*s (A. Presb.) range from 150*l.* to 300*l.* The West church, b. 1755 (near site of St. Nicholas), in pointed style, has effigies, etc. of Prov. Davidson (who fell at Harlaw), the Hays, etc., and one by Bacon; East ch. a new pointed one, has St. Nicholas's old tower, and the graves of Beattie, Pres. Campbell, etc.; North ch., in King St. by J. Smith, has a spire of 159 ft.; Belmont St. ch., a spire of 110 ft. In 1837, out of 34,000, 9000 were Dissenters, and 3000 of no sect, and the church room nearly equal to the pop. Marischal College, in Broad St. founded 1593, by Keith, Earl Marischal, on the site of Greyfriars (of which part is in the chapel), and reb. of granite 1837, by A. Simpson, on a large scale, in pointed style, includes a tower of 100 ft., a library of 12,000 vols., museum and hall (each 74 ft. by 34) with some of Jameson's pictures, observatory (1826) — has about 600 members and 60 bursaries held for 4 yrs. and, though of small value, of great use to par. schoolmasters, "so that the universities have silently and unostentatiously raised the intellectual character of Scotland" — and is under a chancellor, rector, dean, principal, with professorships and lectureships in humanity (latin), greek, mathematics, moral philos. and logic, nat. philos. divinity, oriental lang. medicine, surgery, civil and nat. hist., chemistry, church hist., practical religion, evidences of Christ., scot. law, botany, mat. medica, institutes of med., midwifery, med. jurisprudence, agricult. King's Col. (see OLD A. below), was joined to this by Ch. I. 1641, as the Caroline Univ., but they were soon divided again, and attempts to reunite them have been made without success. The Port, which is a bar harb. communicating with the Inverury canal, has been so much improved by Smeaton and Telford, at a cost of 140,000*l.* that it contains 34 acres (more than any other single dock), has 15 ft. water, and 6000 ft. quay room (100 ft. broad), inside a pier and a breakwater, 1200 and 800 ft. long; a light on the N. pier in one with that in the harb. leads up the river; and Girdleness to the S., has two lights seen 15 and 18 m. off. There is 7 to 9 fath. in the road, and the tide rises 12 ft. Shipping — in 1846, 335 sail of 53,117 tons (62 being under 50 t. each), and 14 steamers of 3951 t. (4 under 50 t.) belonged to the port — to which Newburgh, Stonehaven and Peterhead are sub-ports; and the tonnage Inwards and Outwards (including repeated voyages) was 'coastwise' 1636 sail of 150,875, and 1032 of 8299 tons (besides 280 steamers of 97,619, and 293 of 101,707 t.), — from and to 'colonies,' 27 of 5061 and 22 of 6328 t., — from and to 'foreign ports,' 97 of 15,328 and 98 of 16,834 t. (besides 104 foreigners of 6740, and 71 of 4520 t.). Imports (val. — L.) are coals, iron, lime, bones for manure, wheat, flour, cotton, flax, hemp, salt, etc.; exports (val. — L.), granite for paving, etc., oats, bere, flax, cotton and woollen goods, cattle, butter, eggs, pork, salmon (packed in ice); total customs, 81,433*l.* Vessels with the Aberd. bow are very safe in bad weather. The salmon fisheries (given by Bruce) yield a revenue of 10,000*l.* to the city. (See the co. for the rail. etc.) It is famous for dried Finnan haddocks, which are thought to lose their flavour when sent away. Steamers or packets run to Dundee, Leith, Hull, London, Peterhead, Inverness, Lerwick, Wick, Kirkwall, and about 20 coaches start on the various roads. Stockings, mits, plaideans, etc., were made before

1651, and sent abroad; and a branch bank was tried about 1690, but did not stand. About 48 m. of gaspie is laid down, and artesian wells have been sunk with middling success; "the Breviary of Aberd." was one of the earliest printed Scottish books; Bp. Forbes greatly promoted printing here 1621; Aberd. "Almanacks" which had a monopoly and cost a plack ($\frac{3}{4}$ d.) came out 1677; the 'Aberd. Journal' appeared 1746, and it now publishes besides, the 'Herald,' 'Banner,' 'N. of Scotland Gazette,' and 'Scottish Farmer.' Manganese, hornblende, titanium, beryl, etc. are found near. The Reformation made early progress, in spite of a strong feeling for episcopacy; but to this day it is the head quarters of the episcopal and rom. cath. sects in this part. Among the natives are Barbour (born 1330) author of "The Bruce," Jameson (b. 1586) the painter, Jas. Gregory (b. 1638) who invented the reflecting telescope, a grandson John (b. 1724), his son James (died 1821) the physician, Abercrombie the physician, Gibbs the architect, Anderson, or "Davie do a' thing," a noted mechanical genius; Bps. Elphinstone, Dunbar, Pat. Forbes, were prelates; Burnet (of the Burnets of Leys) went to Marischal Coll., G. Campbell, T. Reid, R. Hamilton, held professorships. Byron lived in Broad St. and Beattie near it. Its "Annals" have been written by Kennedy, a militia reg. has it for its head quarters, the roy. N. The University, founded 1411 by Bp. Wardlaw, is under a chancellor and rector, and comprises St. Salvador's coll. (found. 1458 by Bp. Kennedy,—an unfinished quadrangle 230 ft. by 180, with the founder's effigies in the chapel), St. Leonard's coll. (1532, by Prior Hepburn), and St. Mary's or New coll. (1552, by Abp. Hamilton, finished by Beaton, and lately restored)—the first two being united, and having a principal, professors of latin, greek, math., logic, moral philos., nat. philos., civil hist., descriptive anat., chemistry, with 150 students and 71 bursaries,—the last one, which is devoted to theology, having a principal, professors of divinity, eccles. hist., oriental languages, with 30 students, 9 bursaries. A library of 51,300 books, and 63 MSS. supported by a parl. grant, is common to both. Parts of the S. walls and the gable ends are left of the cathedral, which, as begun 1159 by Bp. Arnold and finished 1818 by Bp. Lambertini, was 350 ft. by 65 (or 180 through the transept), and was almost totally destroyed in one day 1559 by the people, after a sermon from Knox; near it are the walls of the austin priory, and the very old tower (108 ft. high, 24 square) of St. Regulus, or St. Rule's, church. Remains are seen of an old gate, the fine chapel, etc. of Bp. Wishart's dominican or black friary (1274), and the old castle overlooking the sea, restored 1401 by Bp. Trail, and ruined 1547. There were also Bp. Kennedy's observantine friary (finished 1478), a collegiate church, etc. Many foreign merchants in prosperous times came to the seuzie fair here, and as many as 200 sail filled the tide harb. which is exposed and rocky on the S. but safe for small craft; the bay outside is clean, with 9 to 12 fath. Two fixed lights on the pier head, put up 1825, are NW. and SE., in lat. 56° 20' N., long. 2° 47' W., 30 ft. high, seen 6 m.; another is on the cathedral. The ravages of a great boar, in Boar's Chase, about Boarhills vil. on Magus (Mucross?) Muir, which belonged to the see, are alluded to in the city arms. Patrick Hamilton and three others were burnt here by the dominant party. ♣ AND. (St.) PRESBYTERY, synod of Fife, includes Abercrombie, St. Andrew's*, Anstruther Easter* and Wester, Cameron, Carnbee, Crail*, Denino, Elie*, Ferryport-on-Craig*, Forgan*, Kemback, Kilconquhar, Kilrenny, Kingsbarns, Largo*, Leuchar's*, Newburn, Pittenween. Free Church Presb. includes those marked *, and Strathkinnes. *Episcopal Ch. ARGYLE, or ARGYLL, a seaside county on the W. coast of Scotland, comprises part of the mainland with the islands of Mull, Tiree, Coll, Muck, Ulva, Staffa, Iona, Lismore, Kerrera Seil, Luing, Scarba, to the N.; Jura, Islay, Colonsay, Gigha, Sanda, to the S., besides several smaller ones; and is bordered by Bute (S.), Argy, and Renfrew. (N.), Dumbrtn. and Perth. (E.), Inverness. (NE. and N.), and the sea (W)—by which it is so much indented that, though a large county, no part of the interior is above 12 m. from water. Length from Lochiel to Mull of Cantire 115 m., greatest breadth 55, av. ditto 30 m.; relative size 1062-10,000 ths; circuit about 460 m. including 340 m. of coast, along which are Ardnamurchan point, loch Sunart, sound of Mull, and its "thwarting tides" lochs Linnhe, Leven and Eil, Lady island light under Lismore, lochs Creran, Etive, Craignish, Feochan, Melford, and Crinan, sound of Jura, lochs Swein, Killisport, and W. Tarbert, Mull of Cantire and light, Campbeltown harb. Killbrannan sound, loch Fyne which communicates by canal across the neck of Cantire with loch Crinan, and runs up NE. to Inverary, Kyle of Bute, Frith of Clyde, and loch Long; all for the most part free from dangers, with plenty of water. It contains 3210 sq. m. or 2,054,400 acres, of which 164,000 acres are cultivated, 950 sq. m. or 608,000 acres are islands, 81 sq. m. or 51,840 acres, lakes; 97,371 persons (mostly gaelic-speaking, and being a decrease of 8672 in 10 yrs.), of whom 33,397 are islanders, 6261 are in Campbeltown and Inverary—49,576 are females, 47,680 under 20 yrs. of age, 86,939 county-born—6194 or 64 per cent. live by commerce, trade, etc. 18,187 or 186 per cent. by agricult. (2481 being farmers and graziers, 2071 crofters or small holders), 644 educated professions, 1401 are independent, 11,189 labourers and servants, etc.; 18,552 houses, besides 655 empty and building; 6 districts, Argyll (Mid.), Cowal (SE.), Kintyre and Knapdale (S.),

Lorn (W. coast),—with Mull (NW.), and Islay (SW.), and their islands; 51 parishes, and parts of 2 others; 4 sheriff-substitute courts, Inverary (the capital, 104 m. from Edinbro'), Campbeltown, Tobermory and Fort William,—and 5 small debt courts Bowmore, Dunoon, Lochgilthead, Oban, Strontian; returns one member to parl. for the county (1803 elect.),—and its three principal towns and burghs Inverary, Campbeltown and Oban contribute to Ayr (el. 368); is governed by a heritable lord lieut. (Duke of Argyll), a lord lieut. and high sheriff, about 55 deputy lieuts., sheriff, and 4 substitutes,—is divided into 2 excise collections,—and constitutes a synod with 6 presbyteries, as below, with 37 clergy, whose av. stipends are 193*l.* Rentals (1811) 192,074*l.* or 1*s.* 11*d.* per acre, ('43) 282,441*l.* or 2*s.* 4*d.* per acre; real prop. (21 being assessed) 13,908*l.*, of which 11,297*l.* for 3009 poor on roll, 1062*l.* on 838 casual poor. Schools about 274, with 15,000 child. attending; av. number of offenders ('36-46) 108. Surface mountainous and barren, chiefly on mica slate which is the prevailing rock in Appin and from loch Awe southwards, and in the islands beyond, except a mass of trap at loch Fyne, and the sandstone about Campbeltown, which has traces of coal; in Mull, Morren, and Ardnamurchan and Staffa basalt predominates. The mountains round lochs Awe, Lydoch, Levern, and Sunart, are chiefly granite,—the highest peaks being the double-topped Ben Cruachan near loch Awe 3669 ft. Buchael Etive at the head of that stream 2537, Benaeatan in Morven 2806, Ben Ima, or the Cobbler, near Lomond 2515, Ben Tuirck in Cantire 1515, Ben Varna in Islay and the peak of Scarba each 1500, Paps of Jura 2580, Benmore in Mull 3168, Oreval in Rum (one of the ruggedest of the islands) 1800. Rivers are all short and rapid, tumbling for the most part down glens of great beauty; such as the Awe from loch Awe into loch Leven, the Orchy through Glenorchy, the Argy by the Inverary road, and others. Loch Awe, the largest and finest of the lakes with its islands and mountains, is W. of Inverary; Avich is near it, Eck lies SE., Tilla and Lydoch NE., Arisa is in Mull, Arienas in the "blue Morven" of Fingal, Nell in Lorn, with several smaller ones. Lead is worked at Strontian, where strontites was first discovered, and also in Islay, with copper—blue slate is quarried at Ballanulish and Easdale—good marble in Tirree and a little cobalt found in Glenorchy. Manufactures are trifling, as coarse woollens, etc. for home use; but spirits are largely distilled at Campbeltown and other places. Climate wet; soil mossy, with plots of good loam in the valleys by the sea and sides of rivers; chief crops, oats and potatoes, the latter being the staple food of the people who suffered in common with Ireland by the late scarcity; estimated stock of cattle 65,000—of the black-faced Linton breed, of which the rearing is the principal branch of industry, and which are sold in the S. for fattening. Farm-buildings middling, but cottages of the lowest class. Agriculture, though in a low state, has received a great stimulus from the rapid steam communication with the Lowland markets, the making of roads, the incorporation of small holdings,—but accompanied by a decrease in the pop.; planting is carried out by the resident proprietors, and with the natural woods about 40,000 acres are covered. Campbeltown is the only port which possesses a regular trade, in which it employs 57 vessels and steamers; but Inverary and Lochgilphead have a good herring fishery. Cantyre and thereabouts, the cradle of the Scottish kings, was peopled by the Epidii, subsequently by the Macdonalds, Lords of the Isles, while the northern part of Argyll was held by the Macdougals of Lorn. Their power was weakened by James III. and after the defeat of the Macdougals under John of Lorn, by Bruce near Bunawe his territory was given to the Stuarts, whence it came to the Campbells. Old castles are, Dunoon near the burial place of the Argylls, Dunolly (the Macdougals' old seat), Dunstaffnage (whence the coronation stone was taken) near Ardehannan priory; MacNaughten's cast. on the Heather isle. in L. Awe is near Inishail nunnery and Kilehurn cast. Seats are, Duke of Argyll Inverary Cast. Cameron, Bt. Fussfern, Orde, Bt. Kilcorry, Riddell, Bt. Ardnamurchan, A. Surface of the county hilly, rising gradually to the S. and E. the parts least capable of cultivation, — and the highest points being Knockdolian (1950 ft.) in Colmonell par., Benerard (1420 ft.)

in Ballantrae, and Cairntable (1650 ft.) in Muirkirk. The hills are chiefly granite mixed with brachia, whinstone, greenstone, red sandstone, etc.; good millstones are quarried at Kilbride, ironstone at Auchinleck; lime and whetstones (called Water o'Ayr stones) abound. Copper and lead are found, and the great coal district of Scotland intersects the county, mines (2320 hands) being worked at Dalry, Kilwinning, Galston, Muirkirk, St. Quivox, Coylton, and Riccarton. The rivers are the Garnock, Irvine, Ayr, the 'Bonnie Doon' (which abounds with salmon), Girvan, Stinchar, or Ardstinchar; and Loch Doon is the principal lake. Soil, a stiff clay, with about 12,000 acres of sand and loam along the coast; of the clay millions of tiles are made, or, being mixed with lime and other manure, it is turned into rich mould, and thus, assisted by tile-draining, which is now extensively practised, many poor districts are rendered highly productive, and a great improvement is consequently taking place throughout the county; wheat, rarely grown till 1785, has become common; barley, peas, beans, turnips, potatoes, are also largely raised, but oats is the chief crop; the cattle are a short-horned cross-breed, excellent for stalling or the dairies, which are famous for their milk and the celebrated Dunlop cheese. Manufactures carried on are, cotton, at Kilburnie, Galston, Riccarton, employing 9229 hands, — muslin (1986, chiefly females), silk (682), woolen and cloth (602), carpets (521), flax and linen (375), nail and iron at Muirkirk (228). In '47 (a bad year), 1044, 563, 526 hands were in the cotton, flax, and woolen mills respectively. Wooden snuff boxes are made at Old Cumnock and Mauchline. The strong natural features of this his native county have been sung by Burns, with whose name every part of it is in some way associated. (2553 being farmers and graziers), 457 by professions, 1581 are independent, 9155 labourers and servants, etc.; 19 parishes, and parts of ten others (St. Fergus and Straloch Lands being locally in E. Aberdeen); 11,149 houses (flats being reckoned), besides 556 empty and building; 2 royal and parl. burghs, Banff (the capital etc. as below), and Cullen, which with Duftoun, Keith, Tomantoul, are small debt courts,—and 2 burghs of barony, Corn Cairn, and Macduff; returns one member for the county (elect. 808),—while the

parl. burghs contribute to return another for Elgin; is governed by a lord lieut., 39 deputy lieuts., sheriff, and substitute,—and constitutes 3 presbyteries of Aberdeen, Fordyce, Strathbogie in synods of Aberdeen and Moray, with 23 clergy, whose av. stipends are 203*l.* Real prop. (1815) 88,942*l.*,—(1843) 116,968*l.*, of which 2592*l.* on fisheries; gross rentals (1811) 79,396*l.* or 3*s.* 10*d.* per acre,—(1843) 110,608*l.* or 5*s.* 4*d.*; valued rent (1674) 79,200*l.* scots; flar or av. price of wheat (1842-8) 51*s.* 8*d.* per qr.—of meal, 15*s.* 3*d.* per boll of 140 lbs. Savings banks (1849) 2, with 8367*l.* from 740 depositors; expend. for poor (1847-8) in 23 pars. (21 being assessed) 9843*l.*, of which 8321*l.* for 1886 poor on roll, 290*l.* for 282 casual poor. Av. number of offenders (1836-46) 26; schools, about 150 with 9000 children attending,—along with Aberd. and Elgin. its shares in the Dick bequest of 130,000*l.* for par. schools. Surface of the county, hilly,—rising in the S. towards the granite peaks of Cairngorm, which is 4080 ft. high, and yields abundance of rock crystals and topazes, the carex phacostachya, and other plants; Ben Rinnes, near Aberdeen, is 2750; Knockhill 1640. These tracts are chiefly grazing for the old native cattle, the valleys being well wooded and watered. Gneiss and mica slate, and limestone abound; marble is quarried at Portsoy, where jasper is found, and from which a bed of granite reaches to Huntly; old red sandstone near Fochabers on the W., as well as about Tomantoul; and there are some good slate quarries, near Banff and Keith. The manufactures are of little consequence, and mostly for home consumption; but distilling is largely carried on in Glenlivet and other parts. Rivers are the Aven, Doon, Fiddick, and Spey; and Loch Aven in the Grampians is the only large lake. Salmon fisheries in the Doon and the Spey are worth 10,000*l.* a year; and the herring fisheries on the coasts employ upwards of 500 boats. Puffins are caught at Crovie. Along the coast to the distance of 6 or 8 m. inland, the soil, chiefly loam and sand, is well cultivated on the improved system, set on foot by the late Lord Deskford and others, by which large tracts have been reclaimed; chief crops, oats, wheat, barley, turnips, but from the uncertainty of the climate, the harvest, especially in the hills, is often not gathered in till winter; in the lowlands, the Galloway, Aberdeen, and Ayrshire breeds of cattle have been introduced—and the total stock is estimated at 25,000; farms run from 100 to 200 acres; leases, for 19 yrs., a few for life; property is nearly all entailed, chiefly in the hands of the Duke of Richmond Gordon Castle, Earl of Fife Duff Ho., Earl of Seafield Cullen Ho. Other families are W. Gordon Bt. Letterfourie, R. Abercrombie Bt. Birkenbog, Innes Bt. Edingight, Grant, Bt. Balindalloch, Duff, M.P. of Dalgaty Cast., Ferguson of Pitfour, Leslie of Kininvie, Stuart of Auchlunkart, etc. Remains of antiquity are the King's cairn in Rathven, the site of a victory over the Danes by K. Indulphus, in which he was killed; castles at Balvenie (the Douglasses), Findlater, Boharm (the Murrays), Rothes (the Leslies). Duncan II. beat the Danes 1102 in Mortlach, which has an old cathedral, and was the seat of a bishopric, until its removal to Aberdeen; another old church is at Gamrie. Gordon Castle, on the Spey, is the site of Tuessim, on the roman road from Tamea in Braemar; Cromdale is Ad Tuessim, Deskford is Ad Selinam. Two or three principal roads run from Banff: 1. to Aberchirder 7 m., Marnoch 9, Forgeue 12, Huntly 17—thence to Aberdeen 56, or by Turriff to Aberdeen

46. 2. To Ordoquhill 10, Grange 16, Keith 19, Bottriphne 25, Mortlach 30, Tomantoul 47; or by Keith to Boharm 25, Aberlour 31, Inveraven 37, Kirkmichael 46, Tomantoul 50—thence to Braemar 76. 3. To Portsoy 7, Cullen 12, Fochabers 25, thence to Inverness 75. 4. To Aberdour 14. Fraserburgh 22.

* P. M. BANF par. in the above co., 156 m. NNE. of Edinburgh, the shire, sessions, and small debt court, a coast gd. station and bonding port at R. Dovert's mouth, and royal and parl. burgh. contributing to Elgin (elect. 218), was first chartered by Will. the Lion, 1165, and under the late act is governed by a provost, 4 bailies, and 17 council, with a revenue of 935*l*. Acres 7680, fertile (once part of Boin forest) with slate near it; pop. 3958+28, in the coasting trade, fisheries, and a small manufact. of thread, linen, soap, leather; houses (many of which were injured by the floods of 1829) 1016, in neat well built streets, with 5 chapels, townho. and prison, custom house, 4 banks, savings bank (6846*l*. from 630 depositors), mkt.-house, public baths, 7-arch bridge, academy, and almshouses; real prop. 12,064*l*.; for poor 773*l*. Living (presb. Fordyce) val. 246*l*, patr. Earl of Seafield, of B. Cast. where Archbp. James Sharp was born, 1618-79. The harb. is but indifferent; in 1846, 111 sail of 11,814 tons (29 being under 50 t. each) belonged to the port, to which Buckie, Cullen, Garmoth, Fraserburgh, are sub-ports; and the tonnage Inwards and Outwards (including repeated voyages) was 'coastwise' 657 of 35,908 and 462 of 23,726 tons,—from 'colonies' 4 of 572 t.,—from and to 'foreign ports,' 5 of 182 and 67 of 4610 t. (besides 31 foreigners of 1458, and 44 of 2744 t.). Corn, cattle, fish, etc. are sent to Aberdeen, London, etc.; total customs 1849*l*. A fixed light is on Brae Head, lat. 57° 40' N., long. 2° 41' W., put up 1832, is 80 ft. high, seen 12 m. Duff cast. Earl of Fife, has a good gallery, and fine prospects. It publishes the 'Banffsh. Bank of Soundings, or briefly "Soundings," stretching from France in lat. 48° N. to Ireland in long. 11° W. across the mouth of the Channel, is a tract where soundings, in 70 to 100 fath., are had coming from the Atlantic. It is steep at the edge which is known, in fine weather by the rippings, in rough weather by the discolouration, of the water. The bottom is sandy and coarse, without mud, except about 49° 20', the parallel for entering the Channel, where it is muddy. A few smaller banks, as the Nymph, and others are marked in the charts, but they scarcely alter the character of the bottom, which rises from the edge evenly up the British chan. and also up the Bristol chan., but deepens a little towards the Welsh side of St. George's chan. Rennell's current setting NW. out of the Bay of Biscay, is at times sensibly felt hereabouts.

P. BEDDGELERT, or BETHGELERT, par. (75) Eryonnydd hund. borders of Merion, and Carnwrn. 6 m. S. of Snowden, near Pont Aberglaslyn, at the union of the Colwyn and Gwynnant, under Moel Hebog (2584 ft.), is a starting-point for tourists, in the heart of fine mountain scenery, and had a gilbertine priory, the oldest in Wales next to Bardsey, found before 1194 by Llewellyn, the last king of Wales. Pop. 1397 + 32, — of vil. 150; poor r. 493*L*. (Festiniog U.); real prop. 687. St. Mary Cur. (Bang.) val. 90*L*, patr. Mrs. Priestley; the small church was part of the priory. Tradition says that Llewellyn, on his return from hunting, being met by his greyhound Gelert, or Kill-hart, with his mouth full of blood, ran to his child's cradle, and finding it overturned and the ground streaming with gore, killed the dog on the spot (still marked by a stone in the ch.-yard); but soon discovered the child was safe under the cradle, and by its side a dead wolf, which his faithful dog had slain. To perpetuate his memory and the child's escape, he founded the abbey. Titanium is found, and in the neighbourhood are Dinas Emrys in the beautiful valley of Nant Gwynnant, Llyn Dinas, Llyn Gwynnant, Cwm Llan under Snowden, Llyn Llydan and its waterfall, Llyn-y-Dydwachen (in the vale of Colwyn), which Giraldus celebrates for its floating island, and the Glaslyn lake and its salmon leap. Fairs, 18 Aug. 23 and 27 Sept. cattle, etc.

WEST, hmlt. (7) Stanwell par. 1 m. WNW. of the above.

BEDFORDSHIRE (46, 52) an inland county of S. England, in old times the territory of the Casii — the tribe to which Cassibelanus belonged, afterwards a part of the roman Flavia Caesariensis, and of the saxon Mercia, is watered by Rs. Ouse and Ivel, and bordered by Hunts. (NE.), Camb. (E.), Herts. (S. and SE.), Bucks. (W.), and Northampton. (NW.) Length, from Market Street, below Dunstable, to the 3-shire stone, 35 m.; greatest breadth 21 m., av. ditto 14½; circuit about 140; relative size, 80-10,000ths. It contains 463 sq. m., or 296,320 acres (297,632 by total of pars.); of which 250,000 are arable, meadow, and pasture; 107,936 + 1245 persons, of whom 22,611 are in Bedford, Luton, Leighton-Buzzard, Biggleswade, — 55,746 are females, 51,971 under 20 yrs. of age, 90,333 county born, — 14,333, or 13 per cent., live by trade, commerce, etc. — 14,933 or 13½ per cent., by agricult. (1458 being farmers and graziers), 767 educated professions, 1720 are independent, 19,923 labourers and servants, etc.; 21,235 houses, besides 729 empty and building; 9 hundreds, — Willey (NW.), Stodden (N.), Barford (NE.), Wixamtree (Mid.), Biggleswade (E.), Redbornstoke (W.), Clifton (SE.), Flitt (S.), Manshead (SW.), and the liberty of Bedford boro', — all of which, with the half-hunds. of Stanburge, Weneslai, and Buchelai, are found in 'Domesdy.'; 122 parishes, with parts of 3 more, 2 extra par. places, and 36 hamlets; 9 market towns, — Bedford (the shire town as below), Amptill, Biggleswade, Leighton-Buzzard, Luton, Woburn, Dunstable, Harrold, Potton-Shefford, Toddington, — the first six being P. L. Unions, — the first five, New County Courts, and also polling places, along with Dunstable and Sharnbrooke; returns 4287 members to parliament, — 2 for the county (4287 electors), 2 for Bedford (as below); is governed by a lord lieutenant, about 86 deputy-lieutenants, high sheriff, and 160 magistrates, — is in the Home military district, and the Norfolk circuit; and is an archdeaconry, including 5 deaneries (as below), in diocese of Ely (sometime Lincoln), and province of Canterbury. Real prop. (1815) 364,277*L*, ('48) 517,474*L*; ditto rentals 284,935*L*. or 19s. 3*d*. per acre (when wheat was 77s.), and 377,995*L*, or 25s. 5*d*. per acre (wheat 55s.); county income ('48) 11,418*L*, of which 482*L*. from county rate (on a val. of 139,584*L*. made 1739), 3445*L*. from police r.; poor r. (yr. '46-7) for 6 unions 44,447*L*, on 483,347*L*, or 2s. 0½*d*. in the £ (wheat being 59s.), — cases relieved 15,506 (out-door 13,670), in estimated pop. of 121,071; total charities 13,721*L*. (1886*L*. for schools and education). Savings bank ('49) 5, with 130,652*L*. from 4049 depositors; in yr. '38-9, 856 m. of road (161 being turnpikes) were maintained for 9054*L*. In '46-7, out of 129 pars. 125 had 190 church schools, supported by 432*L*., with 13,530 child. attending, and 261 paid teachers (21 being monitors), whose salaries were 8082s., and who had 58 teachers' houses : out of these 8 were free schools, and 66 sund. sch. (exclusively, — with 577 teachers and 8697 child.); and 58 in union with the National Soc. had 6183 child., and total grants of 1520l. Offenders in '48, 204 (or 182, av. of 5 yrs.), of whom 144 were convicted, 22 were females, 3 under 15 yrs. of age, 79 could not read or write. Following the Sup. Registry districts of '45 (total pop. 112,378 + 1357), the 'births' were 4204, of whom 2077 were females, 355, or 8·3 per cent., illegit.; 'deaths' 2455, or 1 in 47, — the av. being 46; 'marriages' 971 (at church 882), of which 2181 persons or 55·8 per cent. signed with marks. Surface on the N. and E. and in the fruitful vale of Bedford, generally flat; but on the SW. the chalk hills rise to a considerable height, affording many fine prospects — as, at Amptill, Woburn, and Millbrook which commands one of 50 m. extent. The greater part is enclosed, and an improved system of agriculture has been adopted through the exertions of the late Duke of Bedford. Two-thirds of the soil is clay, to be found in the N. and also in the S. parts about Tuddington, Barton-in-the-Clay, Shefford, to the borders of Camb. This latter portion separates the green sand of the central parts about Leighton-Buzzard, Woburn, Amptill, Biggleswade, Sandy-Potton, from chalk downs in the extreme S., round Dunstable and Luton, which are a continuation of the Chiltern hills of Bucks. A rich gravelly loam is found by the rivers, and good dairy land in the SE.; chief crops are wheat, barley, and turnips (on the sand and chalk), with oats and beans, the smell of which, in Camden's time, sportsmen complained of, as spoiling the scent of the dogs; great quantities of vegetables and butter are sent to market; stock of cattle (of a mixed breed), reckoned at 200,000, and the supply of wool at 4250 packs. The farms average under 200 acres, and let yearly. Principal rivers are: the Ouse, which crosses by a very winding course from Turvey to St. Neot's, and is navigable below Bedford; the Ivel, and its branch, the Hiz (the former famous for its gudgeon), being navigable by a cut from Shefford to Tempsford, where it joins the Ouse; and the Ousel, which passes Leighton-Buzzard. Fuller's earth, once found in Birchmoor wood, at Aspley Guise, is now worked in a neighbouring parish on the Bucks. side; freestone is quarried at Tattenhoe, and chalk, under the name of clunch, is burnt for lime; some of the earths have a semi-petrifying quality, and abound with mineral springs of no importance. At Pulloxhill, it is said, a few gold grains were found at the beginning of the 18th cent. Among the native plants are: the anemone apennina, blue mountain anemone, in Luton wood; astragalus arenarius, purple milk-wort, and gentiana amarella, fellwort, on the Barton hills; convallaria majalis, lily of the valley, Woburn woods; dianthus deltoides, maiden pink, Sandy hills near Caesar's camp; hippocrepis comosa, tufted vetch, chalk hills; pimpinella major, or great saxifrage, limestone soil; melampyrum cristatum, crested cow-wheat, and ribes nigrum, black currant, Blunham woods; trifolium ochroleucum, yellow trefoil, chalky meadows; monotropa hypopitys, yellow bird's nest, smelling like primroses, and white bastard hellebore, in the woods. The wood (usitis tinctoria), with which the ancient Britons dyed themselves, once greatly cultivated here, is not known now. The only manufactures peculiar to the county are the pillow-lace in the N. parts (employing 2602 hands), and strawplait in the S. parts (1753 hands). Dunstable straws are as well-known as the Dunstable larks, and the Luton plat is considered superior to Leghorn. Much matting, made of the rushes of the "sedge Ouse," is sent to London. Chief seats are: Duke of Bedford, Woburn Abbey; Marq. of Bute, Luton Hoo; Marq. of Tavistock, Oakley House; Countess de Grey, Wrest, or Silsoe Park; Lord Carteret, Hawnes H.; Lord Holland, Amptill, to which is united Houghton Conquest, once the seat of the Countess of Pembroke; Lord St. John, Melchbourn, formerly of Bletsoe, now a farmhouse; Lord Ongley, Old Warden Ph.; Turner, Bt., Battlesden Ph.; Osborne, Bt., Chicksand Priory; Inglis, Bt. M. P., Milton Bryant; Burgoyne, Bt., Sutton Ph., claimed along with Potton, under a rhyming grant from John of Gaunt; Smith of Aspley, Moody of Aspley Guise, Simson of Bromham House, Gery of Bushmead Priory, Magniac of Colworth, Pym of The Hasels, Edwards of Henlow Grange, Latour of Hexton Hall, Brandreth of Houghton Regis, Orlebar of Himwich, Polhill of Howbury Ph., Harvey of Ickwellbury, Thornton of Moggerhanger, Whitbreads of Southill and Cardington (formerly seat of the Byngs), Crawley of Stockwood, Barnett of Stratton, Stuart of Tempsford, Higgins of Turvey; at Toddington, the Coopers' (formerly the Cheneys') seat, all the Russells are buried. The Oakley hounds are at Milton. Antiquities are the Maiden Bower (anc. Magintum), and Tottenhoe cast., two british camps near Dunstable (anc. Durocbriva); Caesar's camp, near Sandy or Saldy (Salene or Magiovinum); Ravensbury camp, on the hills near Hexton; with remains at Arlesby, Biggleswade, and Bradford. Icknield St. crosses near Leighton-Buzzard (or Beaudesert), on the chalk past Dunstable at Hicknill, to Baldock, whence a roman way goes N. to Potton; Watling St. crosses at Market-Street, to Dunstable, through Stretley, near which is a camp, on to Fenny Straford. An old cross stands at Leighton-Buzzard; a priory was founded by Hen. I. at Dunstable, which drew attention for centuries to the town, whence the sentence of divorce was pronounced by Cranmer, against Q. Katherine who resided then at Amptill; a fine church at Luton, and another at Elstow, the birthplace of the immortal tinker, Bunyan; besides various slight remains of castles. Anne Boleyn, mother of Q. Elizabeth, was born at Luton Hoo; and Margaret Beaufort, mother of Hen. VII., at Bletsoe. A branch rail. from the Bletchley station of the N. Western to Bedford, intersects part of Bucks. and the SW. quarter of this county, length 15½ m., steepest gradient 1 in 129½, opened Nov. 1846. Roads from Bedford are: 1. To Amptill 6 m., Woburn 13, Dunstable 22; or to Leighton Buzzard 21, thence to Aylesbury 30. 2. To Hawnes 6, Silsoe 10, Barton Hill 14, Luton 19, thence to St. Alban's 29. 3. To Shefford past Chicksand priory 9, thence to Hitchin 16, and Hutford 32; or Shefford to Baldock 17. 4. To Sandy by a cross road 8, Biggleswade 11; or to Potton 11. 5. To Barford along R. Ouse 6, St. Neot's 12, thence to Cambridge 28; or to Huntingdon 20. 6. To Keysoe Row 8, Kimbolton 13, thence to Oundle 29. 7. To Sharnbrook near Colworth House 8, Higham Ferrers 15, and Wellingboro' 19. 8. To Turvey Abbey 8, Olney 11; or by Castle Ashby to Northampton 19. 9. To Stagsden 5, Newport Pagnall 13, Stony Stratford 19, thence to Buckingham 26.

* * P. M. BEDFORD borough (52) N. Beds. 50 NNW. of London or 62½ by rail. (as above), the shire assize, sess., and election town, militia head qrs., a polling place and head of an excise collection, in a fertile vale on R. Ouse, was the saxon Be- danford, i.e. town of the ford, near which Cuthwulf in 571 defeated the Britons, — was attacked (911, 921, etc.) by the Danes (who burnt it 1010), and at the Conquest was granted to the Beauchamps, who b. a castle near the river, which was taken by Steph. 1138, by Fulk de Brent 1216, and destroyed 1224 by Hen. III. and of which there are some slight remains; — returns two members (from Edw. I.) — the bounds, which were unaltered by the Reform act, including the 5 pars. as below, — no. of electors 1071 (and of 101. houses 2338); is a boro' by prescription, chartered by Hen. II., and under the late act divided into 2 wards and governed by a mayor (who is returning officer), 6 ald. 18 councillors, with the style of 'mayor, bailiffs, and burgesses of town of B.' and a revenue of 1861. Acres 2200 (or 2164); pop. 9178 + 221, in lace (239 hands), shoe (278), and strawplait (40) making, and a good trade in corn, timber, etc. by the river; houses chiefly in a long street 1880, many ancient, with 6 churches, 4 chapels, sessions house, county gaol on the site of that in which Bunyan wrote his 'Pilgrim's Progress,' house of correction, house of industry, co. infirmary, and Harpur's gram. school with a statue of the founder, 2 hospitals and numerous almshouses, 2 banks, savings bk. Chancellor, — ch. ancient, with a font and norman porch. Of the charitable foundations for which this place is distinguished the most important is the "Bedford charity," endowed by Sir W. Harpur, a native (died 1574) and sometime Ld. Mayor of London, with lands at Bedford and in Holborn which then produced 180. l. per annum (but now as above), consisting of the gram. school, which has 8 exhibitions of 80. l. each at the universities, a hospital, and schools for boys and girls, about 70 almshouses, besides large sums in apprenticeships, marriage portions, pensions and gifts to the poor. The new 5-arch bridge (b. 1818) on R. Ouse, replaces a very old one. St. John's hosp. was found. 1280 by R. de Parys, and St. Leonard's soon after; there are remains of Elstow nunnery and gray friars' hosp. founded by Mabel Pateshull of Bletsoe, now a farmhouse; near Caldwell priory on the river, found. by the Houghtons, stood a chapel in which K. Offa was buried, afterwards swept away in an inundation; part of the George Inn is as old as 1481; and at Mill Lane chapel, of which he was minister, Bunyan's chair is kept. B. Observatory, Cap. W. Smith, R. N. S. Palmer the nonconformist was a native, — it publishes the 'B. Mercury' and 'B. Times' newspapers; and it gives title of duke to the Russells, conferred on the 5th earl, but first created in the person of John Plantagenet, regent of France, and again in the Nevilles and Hatfields. *Bedf. Bedford Level (64-5, 69, 70) so called after Francis, 5th Earl of Bedford, who began the drainage of it, is the large marshy flat or level known as the Fens, on the NE. coast of England, near the Wash, reaching inland to Downham market on the Gt. Ouse, Norfolk. — Brandon on the Lit. Ouse, and Mildenhall on R. Lark, Suff. — Isle of Ely to Milton, Camb. — Earith on R. Ouse, Ramsey on the Old Nen or Wisbeach, and Yaxley, Hunts. — Peterboro' on R. Nen, Northampton. to the Glen, beyond Market Deeping and Spalding on R. Welland in the Parts of Holland, Linc. — taking in a tract 25 m. by 20, divided into the N., Mid., and S., Levels, and estimated at 400,000 acres, of which about 9000 are in Peterboro' fen, 230,000 l. of Ely, 60,000 Hunts. 63,000 Norfolk 30,000 Suff. When the Romans came to Britain, they found, at a lower level than the present, a large forest here, which they cut down, and made a road across the country, to be seen at this day. It was afterwards brought into such a state of cultivation as to call forth the admiration of those who saw it; but about 1236, the sea broke through the embankments, and turned the whole into a bog and morass, in some places 20 ft. deep, across which the people communicated by boat. After several trials, the result of one of which was Bp. Moreton's Cut, now part of R. Nen, made with little success, a company for draining the fens, was formed in the time of Ch. I., with the Earl of Bedford at its head, which being incorporated 1664, exists now. Under their management large cuts such as the Old and New Bedford Rivers, Bevil's River, Sam's Cut, Peakirk, South-eau, Sixteen-Foot Counter, S. Holland, and N. Level Drains, besides numerous small ones, have been made, embankments repaired and improved, and great tracts of pasture and cornland reclaimed. The latest and most important work (1828-9) is the New Outfall of $6\frac{1}{2}$ m. for improving the navigation past Wisbeach, at a cost of 200,000*l.* See B. Old River, as above, one of the finest drains made by the company, 70 ft. wide, 21 m. long, goes from Earith, Camb. to Salter's Lode near Downham, Norfolk. The New B. River, cut about 1650 by William, 6th earl, is 100 ft. wide, and runs parallel to the other, at about 1 m. distance.

BELVOIR, or "Beever," extr. par. (70) Framland hund. NE. Leicest. on the Lincoln border, 10 m. NNE. of Melton Mowbray-105, derives its importance from B. Castle, seat of the Duke of Rutland, where the 'B. hounds' are kennelled. Acres 170, with fossils; pop. 109; real prop. 1319*l*. The castle seated on a hill (ascended by steps), which commands a view of 80 m. over the Vale of B., and restored by Wyatt, was founded by Rob. de Todei, the Conqueror's standard-bearer, who had about 80 lordships, many of which still belong to the duke his descendant. Among the pictures are Nic. Poussin's 'Seven Sacraments,' several by Claude, Rubens, Murillo, Teniers, Lely, Reynolds, Gainsboro', West, Mortimer, — and the Quixote tapestry. A fire in 1816 destroyed part of the building to the value of 120,000*l*. Lower down are remains of the priory, founded about 1076 by De Todei, of whom it has a memorial, and given to the Mannerses at the dissolution, when the ancient tombs were moved to Bottesford church.

BERKES () 6 m. W. of Penrith, E. Cumberld.

BERKSHIRE (7, 8, 12-3, etc.) an inland county, and one of the most beautiful in England, formerly the territory of the Atrebatii, Bibrocæ, and Legontiaci, afterwards a part of the roman Britannia Prima, and of the saxon Wessex when it was called Berrocacire,—is watered by R. Thames and its tributaries Rs. Kennet, Lambourne, Loddon, Ork, traversed by the Berks. and Wilts. and Kennet and Avon canals, and Gt. West. rail. and bordered by Glouc. (W.), Oxfo. (N.), Bucks. (N. of R. Thames), Wilts. (SW.), Hants. (S.), and Surrey (SE.). Length from R. Total charities 21,392*l.* (5232*l.* for schools and education); savings banks ('49) 10, with 372,294*l.* from 12,612 depositors; in yr. '38-9, 1619 m. of road (198 being turnpike) were maintained for 12,693*l.* In '47-8 out of 193 pars. 191 had 340 church schools, supported by 9167*l.*, with 17,109 child. attending and 409 teachers (39 being monitors) whose salaries were 6728*l.*, and who had 164 teachers' houses; out of these 8 were free schools, and 56 sund. sch. (exclusively, with 369 teachers and 5258 child.); and 103 in union with the National soc. had 7697 child. and total grants of 2168*l.* Offenders in '48, 360 (av. of 5 yrs. 498), of whom 279 were convicted, 43 were females, 11 under 15 yrs. of age, 127 could not read or write. Following the Sup. Registry districts of '45 (total pop. 190,372+1523) the 'births' were 5753, of whom 2819 were females, 463 or 8·1 per cent. illegit.; 'death' 3459, or 1 in 51, the av. being 46; 'marriages' 1268 (at church 1154), of which 1070 persons, or 41·9 per cent. signed with marks. A line of chalk hills, which are a continuation of the Chilterns, and called the Ridge way, runs E. and W. through the broadest part of the county, dividing the vale of Kennet from that of the Thames or of the White Horse—so named from the figure of a horse cut on a hill-side (893 ft. high), near Kingston Lisle, and celebrated for its fertility. The 'white lands' in this quarter are a gray chalk, mixed with clay, on a substratum of blue limestone and oolite. Chief crops, oats, wheat, barley, turnips, beans, with many artificial grasses; but on the Thames, and to the W. about Farringdon, the land is mostly pasture and dairy land,—and hence the single and double Gloucester and Buscot pine-apple cheeses are sent to market. The Downs' district, of which E. Ilsley is the centre, are sheep-walks, for the native, "Notts." and the South Down, Wiltshire, and other breeds, with which they are mixed; these are for the most part barren, but towards the E. about Bassildon and Ashampstead it is all lanes and woods, everywhere commanding beautiful prospects. The vale of Kennet, which at one time was part of Windsor forest, and still contains much woodland, is as fruitful in grain as that of the White Horse; and the banks of the rivers abound with mills for grinding the superabundant produce, much of which is also converted into malt at Abingdon, Reading, Wallingford, etc. The soil here is a reddish gravelly loam, in which peat, with many remains of bones, is dug, as at Newbury and elsewhere, for manure and fuel. To the E. of this is the Forest division, with a soil which is in general of a poor quality, consisting of blue clay and gravel on a chalky bottom (with some meadow land by the Thames), and of brown or iron sand about Bagshot and Sandhurst. Windsor forest, the largest in the county, and formerly much larger, contains about 60,000 acres, the greater part now enclosed; one half is private property, 4400 belong to the crown, and much of the rest is waste. Oak and beech are the chief plantations; osiers are grown by the river sides for the basket-makers, and "verdant alders" for brooms, rake-handles, and the like. The neighbourhood of Farringdon is famous for its hogs, which are some of the finest in England, and are cured for bacon, being fed on the refuse of the dairies: a choice mixed breed exists at Sunninghill park. The cattle are north country breeds, and the stock of sheep, for the sale of which a large fair is held at S. Isley, is estimated at 308,000, and the wool at 4500 packs. State of agriculture and the condition of the farmer, middling; leases run 7 or 14 yrs., and the land is usually driven hard. Among the native plants are caucalis dawcoides, small burparsley, in the corn-fields, and the rare orchis militaris, or military orchis, on the Cawsham hills, both near Reading; convallaria multiflora, Solomon's seal, near Newbury wash; lathyrus palustris, marsh vetchling, Abingdon wood; lycoperdon fornicatum, turret puff ball, Bucklebury meadows; monotropa hypopitys, or bird's nest, in the woods; myrica gale, sweet gale or dutch myrtle, Old Windsor park; salix rubra, green-leaved willow, among the osiers below Maidenhead. Besides Windsor Castle, the seat of Her Majesty the Queen, some of the leading family seats are: Earl of Abingdon, Wytham Abbey; Earl Craven, Ashdown Ph. and Hampstead Marshall; Earl Radnor, Coleshill Ho.; Lord Braybrooke, Billingbear Ph.; Ld. Rokeby, Sandeford Priory; Vict. Barrington, Beckett Ph.; Sykes, Bt. Basildon Ph.; Rich, Bt. Benham Ho.; Ximenes, Knt. Bear Place; Dukerfield, Bt. Stanlake; Walsh, Bt. Warfield Ho.; Martin, Bt. Lockynge Ph.; Justice of Abbey Ho., Congreve of Aldermaston, Baring of Bangor Ho., Dundas, M. P. of Barton Court, Goodlake of Benham, Walter, M. P. of Bear Wood, Gower of Bill Hill, Davidson of Binfield, Vansittart of Bisham Ab. built by the Montagues, Lenthall of Besselesleigh, Throckmorton of Buckland, Pryse of Buscot, Blackford, M. P. of Castle Priory, Nelson of Chaddelworth, Craven of Chilton Ho., West of Culham Court, Bacon of Donnington Castle (once belonging to Chaucer's family), De Beauvoir of Englefield Ho. (b. by the Faulets), Eyston of E. Hendred, East of Hall Place, Sawyer of Hayward Lodge, R. Palmer, M. P. of Holme Park, Willis of Hungerford Park, Atkins of Kingston Lisle, Palmer, M. P. of Luckley Ho., Hippisley of Lambourne Place, Herne of Maidenhead Bridge, Peyntz of Midgham, Isherwood of Old Windsor, Griffiths of Padworth (very old, with arms of the Forsters in the windows), Pusey, M. P. of Pusey Ho. (a family as old as Canute's time), Penrose of Shaw Ho., Forbes of Silwood, Skrine of Shilling Ho., Crutchley of Sunninghill Park, Russell, M. P. of Swallowfield Ho. (where Clarendon wrote his "History"), Williams of Temple Ho., Bonham of Titness Park, Mount of Wasing Lodge, St. John of West Court, Chomley of White Knights, Blane of Winkfield Park, Wheble of Woolley Lodge, Wroughton of Woolley Park. The Bramshill hounds are kennelled there; the Old Berkshire, at Tubney; S. Berks. at —; Craven, at Benham; royal stag hounds at Ascut Heath. Manufactures of this county are of no consequence, — those of cloths, once of great extent, of sacking, sail-cloth, and the like, having dwindled to nothing; a few paper-mills stand on R. Kennet, and the Windsor and Kennet ales are well known. Fine trout, eels, etc. are caught in all the streams. Of the antiquities and objects of interest are Cole's pits, near Little Coxwell, 273 in no., supposed to be a British town; Sinodun or Willenham camp; Letcombe and Uffingham castles or camps, one near the White Horse, as are Dragon hill barrow, Wayland Smith's tumulus, which Scott has celebrated in 'Kenilworth,' a curious blowing-stone, the Seven barrows and Ashbury camp, and King Alfred's castle in Ashdown park, the scene of one of his great victories over the

Danes. Bray, whose versatile vicar has become a proverb, is supposed to be the ancient Bibracte; Speen is Spina, near Newbury, i.e. the new fort, which succeeded the old one; Wallingford or Reading, or perhaps Silchester, is the Calleva Atrebatum or chief town of that tribe. Camps at Binfield (where Pope began his 'Windsor Forest,' in which the beauties of this county are described), Castleacre, Caesar's on Bagshot heath, Hardwell castle, Wantage, the birth-place of Alfred; Icknield St., which enters at Streathley, passes by Speen towards Salisbury, with branches along the hills; from Silchester an ancient road went to Speen, and another, called the Devil's causeway, by Old Windsor to Staines; and traces of other roads are seen. Of the religious houses there were abbeys at Abingdon, Bisham, Bradfield, Farringdon, and Reading; priories at Bisham, Cholsey (founded by Etheldred after the murder of his brother), Harley or Lady Place (where the Revolution was planned), Farringdon, Reading, Sandeford, Wallingford; preceptories at Bisham, and Bampton; colleges at Shottesbrook (founded by Trussel, who was here buried in lead, and his wife in leather), Wallingford, Windsor, the chapel royal; besides several hospitals. Specimens of Norman and other churches may be seen at Avington, Bucklebury, Cumnor, Englefield; Shottesbrook (a beautiful small cruciform), Uffington (cruciform), Welford (a Norman round tower, with the part above it early, and the spire at the top later, English). Castle ruins at Farringdon, Donnington (the size of which used to strike Camden with astonishment), and Wallingford; Windsor castle, founded by the Conqueror, improved by Will. of Wykeham, and restored by Wyattville, covers 12 acres of ground, and has a view over 12 counties, with a noble promenade 1870 ft. long. Of the ancient mansions are Aldermaston house, Appleton (part as old as Hen. II.), Ockholt, Cumnor (seat of the Verneys and scene of Amy Robsart's murder by order of Leicester), Witham (the Harcourts). At Eddington, near Hungerford, Alfred visited the Danish camp, as related in history, previous to his second victory; Sonning was the seat of a bishopric before it was removed to Sarum; Newbury was the birthplace of Smalwood or Winscombe, the rich clothier, called Jack of Newbury, who marched with his men to Flodden Field, — in the civil wars it was the scene of two actions, in one of which Ld. Falkland was killed. It gives title of earl to Howard Earl of Suffolk and B. The Thames is navigable its whole length, 105 m. from Lechlade to Old Windsor, along the N. border; the Kennet, by means of cuts, for 30 m. from Hungerford through Newbury to Reading; 20 m. of the Wilts. and Berks. canal, in the vale of White Horse, from Bourton through Wantage to Abingdon, are in the county, and about 9 m. of the Kennet and Avon canal from Hungerford to Newbury; 48 m. of Gt. West. rail. from Maidenhead, through Twyford, Reading, Didcot (whence there is a branch to Oxford), and between Wantage and Farringdon, to Shrivensham; 26 m. of the branch, from Reading through Newbury to Hungerford; and 8 m. of the junct. between Reading and Basingstoke (on S. Western). Roads from Reading are: 1. to Twyford 6, Great Marlow 14; or to Maidenhead 12. 2. to Wokingham 6, Sunninghill, over Bagshot heath, 14, thence to Staines through Windsor park; or to Bill Hill 6, Warfield 12, Windsor 17. 3. to Swallowfield 6, Basingstoke 14. 4. to Theale 5, Midgham 10, Newbury 17, Hungerford 25. 5. to Whitechurch 5, Streathley 9, Upton 16, Wantage 24, Ashbury by the Port way, passing the White Horse and blowing-stone, 33, thence to Swindon 41; or by Wantage to Farringdon 32. 6. to Streatley 9, Wallingford 15, thence to Oxford 28; or to Upton as above 16, Stevenston 20, Abingdon 24, thence to Oxford 30. 7. Bernicia, so called from R. Brennich, under the saxon rule, was between the Tyne and the Forth, and with Deira lying between the Tyne and the Humber, formed the kingdom of Northumbria, which was one of the Heptarchy—but being sometimes under a separate king, it is regarded by Mr. Turner in his history as a distinct kingdom, making England at this time, according to him, an Octarchy. It lasted from Ida, who first assumed the title of King in 547, to Eanred, who became tributary to Egbert in 841.

House*, chief heritor. The port is a bad rocky tidal harb. with a pier; and 4 ves. of 273 tons belong to it. Craighleith and Bass rocks, etc. are in view.

BERWICKSHIRE, so called from Berwick, which was formerly the capital, a sea-side and border county in S.E. Scotland, beyond R. Tweed, was seat of the Ottadini, and part of the roman Valentia, afterwards of the saxon Bernicia, — is watered by the Tweed, etc., traversed by N. British rail., and bordered by N. Sea (N. and E.), Durham and Northbrld. (SE.), Roxburgh (S.), Edinbro' (W.), and Hadngtn. (NW.) Length from Clint's hill to Berwick 35 m., av. breadth 14; relative size 146-10,000ths; circuit about 125, of which 25 are coast, for the most part rocky and dangerous, having along it Berwick harb. and lights, Burnmo' fishing-cove, Eyemo' harb., St. Abb's head and Coves fishing-town. It contains 442 sq. m. or 282,880 acres, of which 5-9ths are in the Merse, about 137,500 are cultivated, and 25,000 unprofitable (in Lammermuir, etc.); 34,438 + 89 persons, of whom 1148 are in Lauder, 17,880 are females, 16,003 under 20 yrs. of age, 27,392 county-born, — 3608 or 10·5 per cent. live by trade, commerce, etc., 6173 or 17·9 per cent. by agricult. (519 being farmers and graziers), 293 professions, 734 are independent, 8364 labourers and servants, etc.; 7408 houses (reckoning flats), besides 401 empty and building; 31 pars. (Lauder, the largest, 58 sq. m.), and parts of 2 others; 1 royal and parl. burgh, Lauder; 5 burghs of barony, Greenlaw (the co. town, 38 m. SE. of Edinbro', where the sheriff's and sess. courts are held), Dunse (sometimes called the capital), Coldstream, Cockburnspath, and Eyemo', — the first three, with Lauder, Ayton, Earlston, being small debt courts; returns one member to parl. (elect. 1207) — and Lauder (el. 56) contributes to Haddington; is governed by a lord and vice lieut. 24 deputy lieuts. sheriff and substitute, etc., — and constitutes the presbyteries of Dunse and Chirnside, with parts of Lauder and Kilso, in synod of Merse, with 31 clergy whose av. stipends are 215*l.* Real prop. (1815) 245,379*l.*, — ('43) 252,945*l.*; rental (1811) 231,973*l.* or 16s. 5*d.* per acre, — ('43) 237,042*l.* or 16s. 10*d.* per acre; valued rent 178,366*l.* scots. Fiar or av. price of wheat ('42-8) 49s. 4*d.* per qr., — of meal 17s. 5*d.* per boll of 140 lb. Savings banks ('49) 1, with 3197*l.* from 216 depositors; expend. for poor ('47-8) in 32 pars. (31 being assessed) 8945*l.*, of which 7323*l.* on 1322 poor on roll, 403*l.* on 417 casual poor. Schools (1837) of all kinds 93, attended by about 6300 children; av. no. of offenders ('36-'46) 35, — but in '48, it was 110. The Lammermuir district, formed by a range of old slaty rocks of the silurian formation, with trap peaks here and there, divides the county on the N. from the Lothians, and at one period was covered with forest, but is now bleak and moory, with a peat soil, upon which the hardy black-faced sheep find pasture; it is not destitute of many cultivated patches in the valleys. The principal heights on the NW. are Crib law 1615 ft. (the highest of the range); Lammer law, which gives name to the whole 1500 ft.; on the W. overlooking Lauderdale and the Lauder haughs and Yarrow, are Clint's hill 1544 ft., Airhouse law 1054 ft., Tippet knows 1323, Boon hill 1090; to the N. Manslaughter law 1273; to the NE. Cockburnspath law 912, and St. Abb's Head 300, at the end of the range on the coast — which is further interesting as showing, at Siccar point, the change from the secondary to the primary formation. Other heights on the SW. are Earlston hill 1200, the broomy "Cowdenknowes" 1000, and Bemerside hill 1011; and in the centre, Dirrington great law 1145, Laughton Edge 900, Kyleshill of porphyry 1110, and Dunse law 630, commanding a fine view of the Merse, of which there is also a rich prospect from Chirnside hill. The Kaimes and Herri's dyke in Greenlaw par., which are gravelly ridges of some extent, have been supposed to be british works, but most probably are natural elevations. Freestone, limestone, and whinstone abound; red sandstone is quarried at Edrom, Nenthorn, Mertoun, Swinton, and Hutton; good gypsum at Chirnside and Greenlaw; ironstone near beds of poor coal at Ayton, Cockburnspath, and Mordington; slate at Lauder (with traces of copper) and at Bunkle; good lapidary stones are found in the Tweed, and pure quicksilver has been discovered at Hidehill. There are two small lochs at Dunse and Coldingham pars.; the salmon and trout fisheries in the streams, though not so plentiful as formerly, are still valuable, and the deep sea fisheries at Eyemouth and Burnmouth yield abundance for consumption and importation to the S. The manufactures are unimportant, those for cotton and linen employing 208 persons, besides 61 returned as spinners and weavers; there is a woollen factory at Mellerstain in Earlston (47 hands in 1847), but the papermill at Edrom is gone. Mineral waters are found at Chirnside and Dunse. Between the Tweed and the foot of Lammermuir is a strip from 8 m. long to 10 broad, called the Merse (i.e. march or border, or else, according to Chalmers, the marsh or flat), consisting of upwards of 100,000 acres, for the most part nearly level, of good fertile clay soil, with valuable beds of shell marl for manure, on a substratum of limestone, coal, and old red sandstone, well and systematically cultivated. Chief crops, wheat and turnips, with barley, oats, beans, etc. Waste land is in course of being reclaimed, by draining and otherwise, to which end there are large tile-works at Swinton, Hutton, and Eccles (which is celebrated for the luxuriance of its crops). Farms large, and the farmers, whom Lord Kaimes abused as "born and living in mud, and having muddy heads," intelligent and enterprising. Stock of sheep about 115,000, chiefly long-woolled in the Merse and Cheviots, mixed with the native breed on the uplands. Principal families and seats are: Earl of Lauderdale Thirlstone Castle, Earl of Home The Hirsell, Marq. of Breadalbane Langtown, Earl of Haddington Lennel Ho., Earl Buchan Dryburgh Ab., Earl Wemyss The Retreat, Ld. Blantyre Wedderlie, Ld. Polwarth Mertoun Ho., Ld. Sinclair Nisbet, Campbell Bt. Marchmount (the ancient seat of the Morvilles), Don Bt. Newton Don, Hall Bt. Douglas, Hay Bt. Atherstone, Baillie of Jerviswood, Hay of Dunse or Drummelzier, the Homes of Wedderburn, of Paxton, and Bas-sendeau, Haig of Bemersyde, Ker of Morristoun, Maitland of Manderstone, Renton of Lamerton, Roy of Nenthorn, Shillinglaw of Birkhillside, Spottiswoode of Spottiswoode, Swinton of Swinton, Wilson of Whitsome Hill. The Berwicksh. hounds hunt round Dunse, etc. The history of the county must be read in the history of the Gospatricks, Homes, Hepburns, and Douglasses, and in the border and national contests which took place between the two kingdoms before the Union. Among the antiquities and objects of interest are the british camps at Habchester in Mornington par., Wardlaw hill in Coldingham, and in Legerwood; british and roman remains in Cockburnspath; roman camp at Chesters in Fogo, on Battleknowes in Whitsome, roman and pictish camps at Channelkirk, many pictish camps in Lauder, danish camps on Raelugh in Langton; a curious building, called Edwin's or Woden's hall, in Dunse, and Deadrig cairn or obelisk in Eccles. Remains exist at Coldingham tower commanding the pass to the N., and the Priory, founded by Edgar, the bell of which was carried to Lincoln; Fast castle, on the coast, the Wolf's crag of the "Bride of Lammermoor"; Cranshaw castle, built by the Douglasses, and said to be the original of Ravenswood; Dunse castle, belonging to the Morays; Eccles nunnery, built by the Earls of Dunbar, near Leetholme peel or border tower; Eyemouth fort, built by the protector Somerset; Hume castle, built by the Homes on Lurgie craigs, a basalt rock 898 ft. high, and Dungalas castle, also built by the Homes, on the Haddington border; Hutton hall or border tower; Horndean hosp. founded by Dav. I.; Morriston tower and peel houses, in Legerwood; Dryburgh Abbey, on the Tweed near Melrose; Evelyn peel, in West-ruther; Edrington cast. in Mordington. There are no vestiges of Aytoun cast. nor of the priory at Coldstream, the spot where the "Coldstream guards" were first raised by Monk, and the old rival to Gretna Green for runaway matches. Two old churches stand at Auld Cambus and Polwarth. On the top of Dunse law, a flat of 30 acres, the Covenanters under Leslie were encamped. Pease bridge is, near the coast, remarkable for its elevated place over a pass; from Gordon par. and the vil. of Huntley, which stood here, the Gordons took their titles; and on Lauder bridge the favourites of Jas. III. were murdered by Angus and other conspirators. The celebrated

Duns Scotus was a native of Dunse, where they show the site of his house; and Thomas the rhymier, of Earlstoun. Routes from Berwick: 1. along the coast to Aytoun 8, Granty Inn 14, Cockburnspath 18, thence to Edinburgh 40; or by rail, to Aytoun 7½, Reston 11½, Grant's House 16½, Cockburnspath 21, thence to Edinb. 58: 2. to Chirmside 8, Dunse 14, to the Whitadder 20, thence to Haddington or Tranent; or to Westruther 23, Lauder 30, Sontra Hill 38, thence to Dalkeith: 3. to the Chain bridge on the Tweed 5, Swinton 10, to Kelso 21, Smailholm 27, Earlstoun 32; or to Greenlaw 19, and Lauder 30: 4. up the Tweed on the english side to Norham cast. 6, Coldstream 13, Kelso 21, Dryburgh abbey 30, Melrose 33, Abbotsford 35. Twenty-one m. of the N. British rail, intersects this county on the coast, as above, with branches to Dunse, and, up the Tweed, to Kelso, whence it will go to Jedburgh and also to the Hawick line from Edinbro'.

 P.M. BERWICK-ON-TWEED () in Islandshire or N. Durham, locally in N. Northbrid. (with which it is reckoned, and for which it is a polling place), 334 m. from London, or 369 by rail, and 58 from Edinbro', the frontier town of England and Scotland (though joined to Engld. in all proclamations), a garrison, coast gd. station, and port on the sea at the Tweed's mouth, on the Berwicksh. side of the river, — was founded by the saxon kings of Northumbria (whose territory reached to the Forth), and taken by Gregory of Scotld. 880; given 1020 by the Cospatricks to Mal. IV., who did homage to the Conqueror here 1070; taken 1174 from the Scots by Hen. II., and restored to them by Rich. I.; settled by the Flemings (who had the 'Red Hall,' on condition of defending the town against the English); taken 1272 by Edw. I., who crowned Baliol in the castle 1292, — and again 1295 by assault, when he made it his capital of Scotld.; retaken by the Scots 1297 (under Wallace, whose limbs were exposed here 1305), and again under Bruce 1318; taken 1333, after Halidon Hill, by Edw. III., who was here '35 and 40, and '55, after its surprise by the Scots, seven of whom again surprised it 1377; recovered by the Percys, and on their rebellion taken by Hen. IV., — the garrison being frightened by the effects of the first cannon fired in Engld.; attempted 1422 by the Scots, to whom it was given 1461, by Marg. of Anjou, — who landed here 1463, before the battle of Hexham; finally ceded to Rich. Duke of Gloucester 1482, and made independent of both countries 1551; visited by Jas. I. 1603, on his way to Engld., — by Ch. I. 1633 and '39; and taken by Cromwell 1648; — returns two members to parl. (since Hen. VIII. before which it sent one to the scottish burgh court), — the bounds including the par. with Tweedmo' and Spittal, — no. of electors 888 (and 10½ houses 1200); was first chartered by Jas. I., and under the late act is divided into 3 wards, governed by a mayor (who is returning officer), 6 ald., 18 council, with the style of 'may., bailiffs, and burgesses of boro' of B. on T.,' and revenue of 15,794l. (Durh.) val. 289*l.*, patr. Dean and Chap.; church, reb. in Cromwell's time, on site of that wherein Edw. III.'s sister Joan married Dav. Bruce 1328. Some few remains are left of the castle, where Edw. I. confined the Countess of Buchan in a wooden cage for 6 yrs.,—and of the Bell and Magdalen towers which communicated with it and the old walls; but nothing of the hosp., the priory, Sir J. Grey's friary (found. 1270), or Dav. I.'s nunnery. The harbour, which is rocky and difficult from a shifting bar, has good anchorage within, near Carr rock off Spittal, and is defended by a pier and slip of 800 yds. (b. 1810, for 40,000*l.*), with two fixed lights, in lat. 55° 46' N., long. 2° 0' W.,—the upper, or bright one, being 44 ft. high, and seen 11 m.,—the lower red, and seen when the bar has 10 ft. water. There is anchorage in the bay outside in 9 fath.; but several reefs line the coast. In 1846, 76 sail of 5818 tons (32 being under 50 t. each), and 2 steamers of 295 t. belonged to the port, to which Alnmo', Budle, Holy Isld. are sub-ports; and the tonnage Inwards and Outwards, including repeated voyages, was 'coastwise' 852 sail of 39,843, and 563 of 28,285 tons (besides 179 steamers of 15,384, and 180 of 15,395 t.),—from 'colonies,' 6 of 1510 t.,—from and to 'foreign ports' 13 of 2190, and 7 of 822 t. (besides 47 foreigners of 4071, and 23 of 2395 t.); imports (val. —l.), timber, bones (for manure), iron, hemp, tallow, etc.,—exports (val. —l.), corn, wool, salmon, provisions, etc. from the county, to which it is the great outlet; total customs 15,729*l.* It publishes the 'B. Advertiser' and 'B. War-der' newspapers; and Stevenson, a writer on commerce, was a native. *Berwick. P. L. BLENHHEIM PARK ext. par. (45) close to Woodstock-62, Mid. Oxon. on R. Glyme and Akeman St. which can be traced in the park, seat of the Duke of Marlborough, first granted with the Honour of Woodstock, to the great Duke to commemorate the victory of Blenheim on the Danube 2 Aug. 1704, and held by the service of presenting a stand of colours to the sovereign on that anniversary. The palace, towards which 500,000L was voted by parl., was designed by Vanbrugh; and though it displays the proverbial heaviness of his style, is a grand building of 384 ft. from wing to wing, containing a hall painted by Thornhill, saloon by La Guerre, theatre, bow-window room in which as in others are some beautifully worked tapestries, state, blue, and green drawing-rooms, grand cabinet, dining and dressing rooms, a famous library 183 ft. long, with Rysbrach's 'Q. Anne,' chapel with Rysbrach's 'Duke and Duchess.' Among the paintings are many family and other portraits by Vandyck, Lely, Reynolds; Raphael's 'Virgin, Child, St. John and St. Nicholas,' his 'Dorotea,' sometimes called the Fornarina—but this is doubtful; several by Murillo and Rubens; Carlo Dolce's 'Madonna,' Rubens's 'Catherine de Medici,' Vandyck's 'Lord Strafford,' 'Ch. I.' and 'Q. Henrietta;' Titian's paintings on leather; the 'Marlboro' gems' collected by Lord Arundel, etc. In the park are: a column 130 ft. high, with a long long historical inscription by Bollingbroke; the China Gallery; the High Lodge, where Rochester, who was comptroller of the park in Ch. II.'s time, frequently resided; Rosamond's well near the site of her bower; the fountain by Bernini, and the water laid out by Brown, who had such an opinion of it that he was afraid 'The Thames would never forgive him for what he had done at Blenheim.' Acres 2940, including the Gt. and Lit. Parks; pop. 109; real prop. 2400L.

It contains 754 sq. m. or 482,560 acres, of which about 2-3rds are inclosed; 55,603 + 727 persons, of whom 20,375 are in Llanelly, Brecon, Coed-y-Cymmar, Penderyn, Hay, Builth, Crickhowell, — 27,529 are females, 24,900 under 20 yrs. of age, 39,415 county born, — 5789 or 10-4 per cent. live by commerce, manufact. etc. (3315 being miners), 5589 or 10-1 per cent. by agricult. (2107 being farmers and graziers), 379 professions, 1305 are independent, 14,846 labourers and servants, — besides others; 11,105 houses, exclusive of 918 empty and building; 6 hundreds, Builth (N.), Crickhowell (SE.), Devynnock

(SW.), Merthyr (Mid.), Penkelly (Mid.), Talgarth (E.), and Brecon boro'; 63 parishes (exclusive of 3 in Brecon), besides part of Glasbury and 2 chapelries; 4 market towns, Brecon the co. town, etc. (as below), Builth, Crickhowell, Hay, which are also poor l. Unions, — while Talgarth, Blaenllynfis, Hay, are decayed boroughs; returns two members to parl. viz., 1 for the county (elect. 2548), and 1 for Brecon, as below; is governed by a lord lieut., high sheriff, and about 45 magistrates; is in the Oxford circuit and the home military district; and comprises an archdeaconry (as below) in dioc. of St. David's, province of Canterbury. Real prop. (1815) 146,539*l.* — ('43) 198,472*l.*, of which 10,430*l.* on iron works, 3187*l.* on quarries; ditto rentals, 121,672*l.* or 5*s.* 0*d.* per acre (when wheat was 77*s.*), and 139,225*l.* or 5*s.* 9*d.* per acre (wheat 55*s.*). Co. income ('48) 8524*l.*, of which 3738*l.* from co. rate (on a val. of 171,133*l.* made 1836-6), 1321*l.* from the Treasury. Poor r. (yr. '46-7) for 4 unions 20,065*l.* on a val. of 185,839*l.* or 2*s.* 2*d.* in the £ (wheat being 59*s.*); cases relieved 4832 (out-door 4337) in estimated pop. of 60,857. Total charities 1529*l.*; savings banks (see town); length of road in yr. '38-9, 1100 m. (181 being turnpike) maintained for 2560*l.* In '46-7 out of 88 pars. 46 had 48 church schools, supported by 1441*l.*, with 3058 child. attending, and 50 teachers (4 being monitors) whose salaries were 1138*l.* and who had 9 teachers' houses; out of these 2 were free schools and 13 sunday sch. (exclusively, with 153 teachers and 1025 child.), — and 13 in union with the National Soc. had 991 child. and total grants of 312*l.* Offenders in '48, 42 (av. of 5 yrs. 42), of whom 30 were convicted, 8 females, 16 could not read or write. Following the 4 sup. registry districts of '45 (total pop. 55,420 + 662) the 'births' were 1919, of whom 945 were females, and 168 or 8-8 per cent. illegit.; 'deaths' 1182 or 1 in 49, the av. being 46; 'marriages' 454 (at church 377), of which 525 persons signed with marks. A range of red sandstone hills runs across the county S. of the Usk to Crickhowell, and thence into Heref. and Monmo', of which the highest points are the Bannau Brecheinog 2862 ft., Mt. Capellante 2394, Treacastle ban 2596, Pen Cader fawr, near Talgarth forest, 2545. This ridge determines the course of the numerous streams which rise in it, — some to the Taf and Taw, which have their sources here, others to R. Usk. N. of this the Epynt hills stretch over to Builth, having R. Irvon beneath, beyond which, in a district of barren slaty hills, is Grubarn 2071 ft.; all, however bare, serve as pasture for the small mountain sheep. Sufficient grain, crops, and potatoes are raised for home consumption. In the valleys towards Hereford hops are cultivated, and some orchards are seen; farm buildings unusually good and comfortable; leases are various. The native breed of small black cattle is mixed with the Hereford white-faced, the Suffolk punch, and other varieties. Coal is found on the S. border, to which the great S. Wales coal-field extends, and limestone on the W., — that at Abercynfig makes a good cement; but iron is the chief produce, the largest works being at Beaufort, Clydach, Romney, and Ynysceder. Traces of copper, lead, and tripoli are discovered. Excellent fire clay is quarried at Penderyn. Penant stone is used for roofing, and chert for millstones and hearths. Leather and a few woollens (which in '49 employed 81 hands in factories) are manufactured for the eng. market. Pike and perch are found in Llansafeddan lake (which is the largest piece of water) and trout in the streams. At Llanwrtyd on R. Irvon is a wholesome mineral water. The Melte is remarkable for flowing about 900 yds. through the Porth Ogov cave, and then down a fall of 40 ft., near which is the Cil Hepste fall on R. Hepste; there are two other falls of some interest,—the Scwd Einon Gam on R. Pryddain, at a pretty spot called Pont-neath Vaughan, and Scwd Yr Hen Rhyd on R. Llech, near Ystradgynlais. Among the antiquities are the Ty Illteyd cromlech; british camps at Penmyarth, Lamhamlwch, Allfallo, Benni Wood, Pen-y-Crug, Cefn-y-Gaer,—the last three near Brecon; two large roman camps—one, the Caer Bannan, the chief station near Aberescir and the Maid's Stone,—the other called Caer or Gaer, near Cwm Dhu—both being on the Via Julia Montana, which went E. through Abergavenny and Caerleon to Bath, and W. through Maridunum to Neath, where it met the Via Julia Maritima on the coast; two vicinal or cross roads from Caer Bannau (joining the Montana and Maritima), the Sarn Hir through Bryn Oer to Cardiff, and the Sarn Helen past Ystradvelte and Llia's stone to Neath—a continuation of these is thought to have gone by Cym on the Irthon to Chester; remains of old castles at Cart-y-Carw near Brecon, Crug Hywel or Crickhowell, Tre'r twr near the Gaer in Cwmdhu, Penkelly (small) on R. Usk where many roman remains have been found, Brecknock Dinas (small), Brynllys, Brynllyni, Builth (small), and part of Brecon priory; old houses, most of which are now farms, at Pont Wilym (Havards), Trevecca (the Prossers, afterwards the college), Porthaml (Vaughans), Dderw (Morgans), Garth (Gwynnes), Caeran (Lloyds), Abercraf and Treacastell (Gwyns). The principal families and seats: Lloyd of Dinas, Gwynne of Buckland, Thomas of Llwynmadock, Wood of Guernnyfed, Macnamara of Llangood Cast., Price of Castell Madoc, Gough of Ynisedwin, Williams of Abercamlas, Williams of Penpont, Watkins of Pennoyre. At Builth the last Llewellyn was killed. Petyn Gwyn was the residence of Sir David Gam; Trevecca the birthplace of Howel Harris; and Ap-Henry, the author of Marton Mar-Prelate, was a native of the county. The Normans first settled here 1088 under Bernard Newmarsh, who defeated the last prince, Rhys ap Teudwr, at Battle, since which the history of the county is the history of the possessors of the lordship,—a district appended to the castle, comprising nearly all Merthyr hund., Llywel (N. of Usk) and Llanspyddid, St. David and Cantrev to R. Cynrig, with Devynock forest,—all now held by the Morgans under a crown lease. Brecon Canal, made 1811, is 33 m. long, falls 68 ft. with 8 locks down R. Usk for 18½ m. to Clydach, past Abergavenny, thence on a level to the Monmouth canal at Pont-y-Pool. Railways run from this canal to the Tredegar, Beaufort, and other works; another rail. runs from Glan-Usk above Brecon on R. Usk near Mt. Capellante to the Swansea canal near Ystradgynlais; a third, made 1812, runs from Brecon past Llanvihangel-tul-y-llyn past Talgarth, Glasbury, to Hay and Eardisley, thence by branches to Kington, Leominster, and Hereford. Roads from Brecon: 1. down R. Usk to Llansainffried 5, Tretower 9, Crickhowell 12, Abergavenny 17, thence to Chepstow 39. 2. down Glyn Tarrell under Brecon Beacons to Glan-y-rhyd 5, Capel-nant-Dhu 11, Cyfarthfa Park and Merthyr Tydvil 18, thence down R. Taff to Llandaff 38, or to Fforest Lodge 6, under Mt. Capellante to Ystradfelte 14, Pontneddfechan or Pontnealle Vaughan 18, down R. Neath to Neath 29. 3. up R. Usk to Capel Bettw 4, Treacastell 10, Peutrebach on the border 14, Llandovery 18, thence to Cardigan or down R. Towy. 4. to Castell Madoc 5, Capel Diffryn Honddhu 8, Builth 14, thence to Radnor and Rhayader. 5. from Crickhowell to Tretower 4, Bleanan 7, Talgarth 13 (thence to Hay 20, or to Glasbury 17) up R. Wye to Boughrood Castle 16, Llanstephan 19, Aberdwr 23, Builth 27, thence to Rhayader 39, or up R. Irvon to Llanfawfechan 32, near Caer Mawr 39, thence to Llandovery 48.

Bristol Channel, the estuary of R. Severn, and the largest in the kingdom, having Devon, and Somerset on the S. side, and Monmouth, Glamorgan, Caernarthen, and Pembroke, on the N., lies inside of Hartland Point and St. Govan's Head, the distance across through Lundy Isld. being about 40 m., and the length, along the middle up to King Road, 80 m. Other breadths are: from Bideford bay to Carmarthen bay 48 m., Morte Pt. to Worms Hd. 22, Porelock Foreland to Porthcawl 13, and Warren Pt. to Breaksea Pt. 11, Brawl Down to Lavernock Pt 8, King Road to Undy 5, giving an av. of 18 m. The harbours, lights, etc., along the S. coast (which has not one safe haven), are, Hartland key, Clovelly road, Appledore pool, and Braunston lights in Barnstaple bay, outside the Taw and Torridge, — Baggy pt. and reef, Morte bay, Rockham bay near Bull pt., Ilfracombe and light, Buggy Pit ledge near Rillage Pt., Wedmouth cove, Combe Martin bay under the Hangman hills, Linnmouth bay near the Foreland, Porlock under Dunkery hill, Minehead, Blue Anchor Road, Watchet harb., Culver sand, and Burnham lights in Bridgewater bay at the mouth of the Parret, — Weston-super-mare under Worle windmill, off which are Steephelm and Flatholm lights (to which Bristol port reaches), with the Wolves rocks close by, — thence past Portishead between the english and welsh grounds or sands to the King's Road and Avon light, and so to Bristol, or past Lydney and Sharpness on R. Severn by ship canal to Gloucester. On the welsh side are: the Wye, which is navigable to Chepstow, St. Bride's light at R. Usk's mouth leading to Newport, — Cardiff roads under Penarth head, leading to the Butte docks, up R. Taff with the Monkstone rock in front, — Lavernock point opposite the Wolves and Flatholm, Sully and Barry islds., Aberthaw near Breaksea pt., Nash point, sand, and Light, Porthcawl harb., — Skarweathers and, Aberavon, Neath, and Swansea harb., and Mumbles light, all in Swansea bay, — Oxwich bay, Porth Einion, Helwich sand and light, — Worms hd., Rhossily bay, Burry and Pembrey harbs., Cefn Sidan sands at the Towey's mouth leading to Carmarthen, Tenby road, Saindersfort harb., Caldy isld., and light off Gilter pt., all in Carmarthen bay, — St. Govan's Head: the whole circuit of coast being about 220 m. A light on Lundy isld. (which has good shelter on E. side) commands the entrance. The depth here is from 20 to 30 or 40 fath., and it shoals gradually to 5 at the Avon. There is generally a great swell from the W., — and ordinary tides rise 27 ft. at Lundy Isld., Bridgewater bay 35 ft., and 48 ft. at King's Road; but gales of wind alter the time and height considerably. On some occasions it is 50 ft. here, and 60 at Chepstow, and all the narrow parts of this channel are liable to be visited with a bore, when the tide suddenly rolls in fathoms deep, doing great damage if ships are unprepared.

Brit River (17-8) rising near Beaminster, W. Dorset, runs 8 m. S. to the Channel at Bridport.

BRITAIN, the general name of these islands, comes, as Camden thinks, from the Greek Britania, a word made from a foreign one, brit or brith signifying painted, and the common ending tania, as in Lusitania, Aquitania. Ptolemy, speaking of them, calls Ireland little, and this great; — from which the name of Great Britain, as applied to the larger, seems to have descended to us. At first the Romans made only two divisions of Britain or BRITANNIA: B. Superior, the part nearer Rome as far as the Trent, or the Mersey and Don; B. Inferior, the rest. A little after, it was divided into three parts, corresponding with the three archdioceses of London, Caerleon, and York; — B. Prima, the first or nearest to Rome, as far as the Mersey and Don, the Severn and Dee, — B. Secunda, all Wales beyond the two latter, — Maxima Caesariensis, beyond the two former. Later still it was divided into B. PRIMA, south of the Thames, including the Cantii, Belge, Damnonii, Broicroii (or Regni or Rhemi), Segontiaci, Hedui, Atrebatii (or Ancalites), Durotriges (or Morini), Cimbri, Cornubii; B. SECUNDA beyond R. Severn and Dee, including the Silures, Ordovices, Dimecie (or Demete), Cangiani

(or Cancana); FLAVIA CÆSARIENSIS (which see) between Rs. Thames, Don, Severn, etc. with Gloucester for capital; MAXIMA CÆSARIENSIS, beyond Rs. Don and Mersey to Severus's wall; VALENTIA, to Antonine's wall; and VESPASIANA, beyond it. See Preface, for GREAT BRITAIN.

Britannia Bridge (78) 2 m. WSW. of Bangor, N. Carnren. begun 1846 and now building by Stephenson on the Holyhead rail. over Menai Strait, S. of Telford's suspension br., consists of two enormous tubular ways or covered troughs, side by side, 104 ft. above high tide, made of wrought-iron plates (each 12 to 6½ ft. long, 2½ to 1½ ft. wide, ¾ to 7-16ths. in. thick) rivetted together, and resting on three great piers in the water, each 62 ft. by 52 at the base, viz.: the Carnren. pier and abutment; the Britannia or middle pier (on B. Rock), 230 ft. high; and the Anglesea pier, 196 ft. high (127 at the roadway), — next which the Angl. abutment is 143½ ft. high. Total length 1833 ft. including 230 ft. from the land (173 from the abutment) to the 1st pier and 32 thro' it, 460 to the middle pier and 45 thro' it, 460 to the next and 32 thro' it, and 230 to the land. Each great tube is in the whole 1513 ft. long, 5000 tons wt., and 14 ft. wide by 18 high, inside; outside, the height is 22¾ at the ends, increasing to 30 ft. in the middle, on account of the strain; — to correct which also, smaller tubes run along the top and bottom. Allowance is made for a change of temp. which causes a difference of 12 in. in the length between winter and summer. One great tube, on which 1500 men were employed rivetting, etc. for months together, was, 19 June 1849, floated out on pontoons, and between 10 Aug. and 12 Oct. raised to its place by an hydraulic press 6 ft. per day (the brickwork being built up underneath as it proceeded), without accident, except the bursting of one of the presses, which exert a force of 800 to 900 ft. per inch; and the first train went thro' one side 5 Mar. 1850. Four carved lions, by J. Thomas, at the ends, are each 25½ ft. long by 18½ ft. high, and 80 tons wt. The cost is about 600,000*l.*, and the total materials are calculated at 14,000,000 cubic ft. of stone (chiefly Angles. limestone), 450,000 cub. ft. of timber, and 11,400 tons of iron (including 2 millions of rivets), or about 14 times more iron than Telford's.
